

Federal No-Fault Insurance Revived

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief sponsor of national no-fault automobile insurance legislation says President Carter's support may be enough to win passage in Congress after years of narrow defeats.

"With that help I think we can win," Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., said Thursday after a White House meeting with Carter.

Magnuson, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, said Carter told him Transportation Secretary Brock Adams would announce the administration's support for no-fault when he testifies today before the panel.

Under no-fault, persons are compensated for injuries in car accidents regardless of who is to blame. Under the traditional liability system, insurance companies must determine, often through lawsuits, which driver is at fault and which insurance company must compensate victims.

With opposition coming mainly from lawyers who handle auto accident cases, no-fault lost in the Senate in 1972, 49-46.

In 1974 the Senate passed no-fault legislation, 53-42, but the House failed to act before Congress adjourned.

On a third attempt to pass a no-fault bill, the Senate killed the measure, 49-45 in March of last year.

Magnuson held his first hearings on no-fault in 1967 and the result was a law ordering a Transportation Department study, which eventually concluded that the new insurance system should be adopted.

Recently, the Transportation Department said the concept was working well in the 16 states that had it.

Backers of the concept, including consumer and labor groups, say that eliminating lawsuits over automobile accidents will hold down the cost of insurance premiums. The Committee for Consumers No-fault, a coalition of proponents of the legislation, says the nation's trial lawyers receive $1.5 billion per year in legal fees from car accident cases.

The opponents, including the American Bar Association and the American Trial Lawyers Association, say no-fault has failed to reduce premiums in many areas and that the federal government should not interfere with state insurance systems.

Magnuson's bill would set minimum federal standards for no-fault systems in personal injury cases and give states three years to establish programs meeting the guidelines. If the states failed to act, the federal government could move in and establish a program.

The measure would allow one injured party in a two-car crash to sue the other for personal damages, but only when losses exceed the amounts paid under no-fault, and only where there is a severe personal injury, disfigurement or long-term disability.

Ohio House OKs Meditation Period

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A House divided over the issue of separation of church and state has approved a bill mandating up to one minute of silence daily in public schools for prayer or meditation.

"Controversy does not destroy religion," said the sponsor, Dale Locker, D-80 Anna, shortly before the House passed the legislation 65-27 Thursday and sent it to the Senate.

"The problem is, do we believe in giving people the right to think for themselves?" said Locker. "Do we believe what we preach?"

Opponents, a bipartisan mix of liberal Democrats and Republicans, offered a different definition of Democratic principles.

"It is an effort to promote the Christian ethic, the very ethic that our founding fathers said should be separate from government," said Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo.

By an 85-3 vote, House members also approved and sent to the upper chamber a bill repealing the holder-in-due-course doctrine, which can deny a consumer legal recourse when he is stuck with faulty merchandise.

In other developments, the House Insurance, Utilities and Financial Institutions Committee recommended approval of a once-defeated proposal subsidizing winter heating bills of Ohio's elderly and disabled citizens. It is expected to reach the floor of the House sometime next week.

The House Finance Committee recommended passage of a major budget language bill implementing the state's $13 billion general appropriations measure, enacted in late June. That Senate-passed measure is scheduled for a floor vote Tuesday.

Nearly an hour of emotional debate preceded the roll call on the prayer-meditation bill. Several attempts to make the measure permissive rather than mandatory failed, partly due to the unwillingness of either side to compromise.

City Board Adopts Balanced 1978 Budget

By CRAIG ALLISON
Herald Staff Writer

The Circleville Board of Education met in regular session Thursday evening in the board offices in the junior high building.

After approving the minutes of the previous meeting and invoices, the first item of business was the approval of the budget for 1978.

Superintendent Fritz Jacobs told the board the proposed budget is balanced, and also informed the board of a reduction in the bond interest rate by one half of a mill. The last millage increase for the Circleville City Schools was in 1969. Jacobs stated, "Inflation has posed some problems for us, as it has for everyone in the last few years, but the 1978 budget is a balanced budget."

The total budget for 1978 amounts to $3,459,135.00, and was approved by the board members.

In other business in the superintendent's report to the board of education, four faculty resignations were accepted. They include Dannie Fouts, junior high math; Richard Neel, junior high industrial arts; Patricia Starkey McRay, Mound Street Elementary; and Pamela Makeever Straight, Title I at Mound Street Elementary.

The board approved Jacobs' employment recommendations on the following persons: Ruth M. Uland, elementary Title I, B.S. degree from Ohio University; Melanie Mann, high school English, B.S. degree from Ohio State University; Jeffrey Wilson, junior high industrial arts, B.S. degree from Ohio State University; and James Windle, physical education and health, B.S. degree from Ohio State University.

Extra-curricular assignments approved by the Board include Kurt Hunter, junior class advisor; James Windle, assistant wrestling coach; Richard Fisher, Key Club; and Carol Cook, sophomore class advisor.

The board gave approval for Helen Justice to replace Mary May Yates in Child Accounting. Mrs. Yates retires from her duties in the Circleville City Schools today.

Approval was also given to place Joanne Schlegler in the vacant position of Clerk's secretary.

Frazier's Refuse Haulers was awarded the school system's refuse hauling contract. The agreement runs from August 30, 1977 to June 5, 1978.

The board gave approval for the school's bus drivers, and Rodger Wolfe, to attend the transportation seminar sponsored by the Metropolitan Education Council on August 18 in Gahanna.

The milk contract for the school lunch program was awarded to the Blue Ribbon Dairy. Homogenized milk will cost 10 cents per half pint, and chocolate milk will cost 12 cents per half pint.

The board approved the change of the roof repair payment from E-2 General Fund to permanent improvement, and also approved a $25 increase in the high school cheerleader advisor's pay.

John Farthing was appointed as the board's delegate to the Ohio School Board Association's conference in Columbus this November. The alternate will be Dr. Robert Liggett.

The school bus insurance contract was awarded to the Danduran and Howell Insurance Agency in Circleville. Their bid of $1986.10 was the low bid.

The board also moved to pay the registration fee of any other board members who wish to attend the O.S.B.A. Conference.

Jacobs informed the board that the Circleville City Schools' Title I reading program was featured in the Spring 1977 issue of the Clipboard, a publication of the State of Ohio Department of Education, Division of Federal Assistance. The article described the Circleville Title I program's criterion-referenced approach to help students improve their reading skills. A cumulative file is kept on each student in the program, and it tells what skills have been mastered, the skills that need to be developed next, and ideas for appropriate instructional activities.

Board member John Farthing also informed the Board of an O.S.B.A. newsletter legislative alert concerning House Bill 449, concerning instant tenure for school faculty members. Farthing informed the board that the newsletter urged that letters be written to Governor James Rhodes asking for a veto of H.B. 449.

With the list of business completed, the meeting was adjourned at 8:45 p.m.

Blackout Probe Starts

NEW YORK (AP) — Pulsing again with the rush and trains and traffic, New York City went back to work today as federal officials opened their investigation into why the lights went out — and why they stayed out for so long.

Today's Federal Power Commission hearing in Manhattan, requested Thursday by President Carter, was the first by governmental agencies trying to fix blame for the blackout that shut down the nation's biggest city for an entire day. Carter ordered an FPC report in two weeks.

Two other investigations were in the works.

One probe was ordered by Gov. Hugh Carey and one by Mayor Abraham Beame, who declined at an early morning news conference Thursday to declare the city's state of emergency at an end "until we are firmly convinced and get reports from Con Edison that the situation is in hand."

With most of 10 million customers of Consolidated Edison Co. still without refrigeration, elevators and mass transportation, Beame on Thursday appointed a board of inquiry whose chairman had harsh words for federal and state regulatory agencies.

Carey directed the regulatory State Public Service Commission to analyze why the power was lost at 9:34 Wednesday night during an electrical storm and why it took Con Ed 25 hours to restore it fully.

As the utility gradually brought back power to a sweltering city, there was a sharp drop in the abnormally high numbers of fires and arrests, mostly for looting.

More than 3,300 persons were being dealt swift justice by casually-garbed judges working overtime to arraign six times the usual number of defendants arrested in a day.

Nearly half of the 25,000-member police force was on patrol at any time, with 426 officers reported injured, 18 of them seriously.

But at nightfall, the city returned to a spectacle of lights that shone silvery.

Tieless, sleepless and wearing shirtsleeves at a post-midnight news conference, the haggard mayor warned commuters to expect slower service. Asked how he felt, the 71-year-old Beame, who is running for reelection, replied:

"I wouldn't want any public official to go through the trying period all of us have gone through."

Earlier he had accused Con Ed of "gross negligence," implying the possibility of damage suit.

"We have been needlessly subjected to a night of terror in many communities that have been looted and burned," Beame declared. "We cannot tolerate in this age of modern technology a power system that can shut down the nation's largest city."

Blaming the blackout on lightning strikes on a transformer and feeder cables, Chairman Charles Luce of the utility company said the mayor was wrong about negligence and added that he expected a number of lawsuits.

No one came up with a sound figure for the cost of the blackout and its effects, but the estimate of losses during a similarly disrupting subway and bus strike in 1966 was $1 billion a day.

Carey asked for federal disaster relief from the Small Business Administration to help merchants repair damaged property.

In Washington, the chief of the SBA's disaster unit, J.B. Alexander, said he expected that relief would be granted. He would not, however, estimate how soon or how much.

But a spokesman for the governor said the White House had assured Carey that "the request will be reviewed promptly and a decision will be made as soon as possible."

Chairman Ira Millstein of the mayor's board of inquiry said Thursday night that he was beginning his work by appointing a staff and by attending today's hearing.

"All these regulatory agencies have been involved for a long time and they didn't prevent this from happening," the 50-year-old lawyer said, adding that "we're not out to get anyone — we want to get the facts."

Replied Public Service Commissioner Charles Zielinski, "Our investigation and report will respond to the assertion and we'll see whether it's correct or not in light of the report."

Lester Stuzin, head of the PSC's five-member task force in charge of the investigation, said the unit would concentrate on the hour before the blackout and the time it took to restore full power.

Stuzin, who investigated the 1965 power failure that shrouded the northeast, said it should not have taken more than a few hours.

"We're going to look very closely at why it took so long to put back the system," he said.

A Con Ed spokesman dodged the question.

"That's going to be the subject of a number of investigations," he said.

The federal investigation will try to determine whether an "act of God" or mechanical problems caused the blackout.

The president of New York's City Council, Paul O'Dwyer, who is seeking re-election, disputed Con Ed's account of lightning strikes on the basis of talks with employees who work at the Indian Point No. 3 generating plant in Buchanan, where the utility said lightning knocked out a transformer.

"Con Edison Co. has set up a defense to claims of damage by calling it an 'act of God,'" O'Dwyer said. "God had nothing to do with it."

State Power Outage Unlikely

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A massive electrical storm could darken the Buckeye state just as it uplugged New York City, Ohio power company officials said Thursday.

But, they chorused, it is "highly unlikely."

"The New York system is really unique," said a spokesman for Dayton Power & Light. "They are on a peninsula and all the power comes in from one direction. If you cut off that one direction they are cut off completely."

And, noted a spokesman for Akron's Ohio Edison, "the demand for electricity is so intense (in New York) that when problems do spring up it can cause complications."

None of Ohio's major power companies sent electricity to New York Wednesday night, partly because of the distance but mainly because Con Edison's problems were transmission and distribution, not supply.

And while most Ohio companies continue to send more power to their customers than ever before, all felt they will continue to be able to meet the demand.

DP&L "can draw power from all directions," the spokesman said. "It is highly improbable we would have a massive outage as in New York. I can't say it won't happen, but there would have to be a series of circumstances that happen at the same time. Lightning would have to hit four or five key locations at the same time, plus there would have to be mechanical failure at that time. Then we could have a massive outage. But we can draw on our neighbors."

A spokesman said the Columbus and Southern Ohio system is "protected against lightning as best we can."

"There are two basic ways. One is with lightning arrestors, which hopefully can take a bolt of lightning and arrest it before it goes into the system. But you can't have them all the way along the line, and the lightning can hit in between them. Two, the system is designed to interrupt the flow (of electricity) for a moment and then reset itself. If it is too big a bolt it will kick it clear out. The idea is to prevent it from kicking that line out and then coming back into the system.

"There just is no way to completely protect against a bolt of lightning, but the idea is to minimize the damage and the area it affects," the Columbus spokesman said.

Spokesmen for Canton's Ohio Power, Cleveland Electric Illuminating, Cincinnati Gas & Electric and Toledo Edison generally agreed.

"Historically, power systems are built with this in mind," said an Ohio Power spokesman. "By dispersing units we can lose one without knocking out the others. I'm not saying (a massive outage) can't happen under a certain combination of circumstances, but safeguards are built in with this idea."

"And in addition to our own strong system, we have the back-up of interconnection through American Electric Power System, which has customers in seven states," the spokesman said.

ARSON? — Investigators from the State Fire Marshall's office are attempting to determine the cause of an 11:05 a.m. Thursday blaze which destroyed a large barn and its contents. The 100 foot by 40 foot barn, owned by Harry Hedges, 16603 Lockbourne-Eastern Road, was involved in flames upon the arrival of the Harrison Twp. Fire Department. Additional fire aid was rendered by the Circleville Twp., Pickaway Twp., and

Rickenbacker Air Force Base departments. Destroyed with the structure were 800 bales of straw, three Farmall tractors, a two-row corn planter, a wheat drill, a hay mower, a spike tooth arrow, a snow blade, and an elevator. Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Jim Dixon requested the state investigation because of the incidence of fire in Harrison Twp.

Natural Gas Deregulation Nixed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's energy program is ready for consideration in a special house committee largely as he wanted it with the defeat of a proposal to de-regulate natural gas.

After days of fierce lobbying on both sides of the natural gas issue, the house commerce committee voted 23-20 on Thursday against a compromise de-regulation proposal.

The compromise included a windfall profits tax on natural gas producers, a move to blunt White House charges that deregulation amounted to a $70 billion ripoff of consumers.

Committee members had a choice between two arguments:

The natural gas industry and its allies contend there would be an ample supply of gas if producers were free of federal controls and could strike the best deal possible for natural gas. Potential profits would encourage exploration for new gas fields, they said.

But the Carter administration said

controls should be continued, allowing a slight rise in price. The increase should be sufficient incentive for producers to look for and pump more gas, administration forces said.

Proponents of deregulation warned of further shortages and job layoffs unless controls were removed. But Rep. Charles Carney, D-Ohio, cautioned, "You'll have all the gas you want, but you can't afford to use it."

The committee earlier had given Carter much of what he wanted on most of the non-tax aspects of his national energy plan. The panel approved:

—Voluntary standards for home insulation to conserve energy.

—A grant program for improving school and hospital energy conservation.

—Standards for more efficient major home appliances.

—Revisions in electricity rate pricing.

—Broad administration authority to prod utilities and industry to switch from oil and natural gas fuels to coal.

The House Ways and Means Committee, which completed work earlier on other portions of Carter's energy package, approved several provisions the President sought.

The panel passed a gas-guzzler tax, a new crude oil tax with rebates to homeowners who heat their residences with oil, tax credits for persons who install insulation and a carrot-and-stick mechanism to encourage a dramatic installation shift from oil and gas to coal.

But the committee rejected the President's proposal for a standby gasoline tax and a rebate for small car buyers.

The new energy committee, a special panel established by the House leadership to examine the energy plan in its entirety, plans to merge the work of the other panels into final legislative form.

The full House hopes to begin work on the package Aug. 1 and complete it within a week.

Blackout Probe Starts

NEW YORK (AP) — Pulsing again with the rush and trains and traffic, New York City went back to work today as federal officials opened their investigation into why the lights went out — and why they stayed out for so long.

Today's Federal Power Commission hearing in Manhattan, requested Thursday by President Carter, was the first by governmental agencies trying to fix blame for the blackout that shut down the nation's biggest city for an entire day. Carter ordered an FPC report in two weeks.

Two other investigations were in the works.

will kick it clear out. The idea is to prevent it from kicking that line out and then coming back into the system.

"There just is no way to completely protect against a bolt of lightning, but the idea is to minimize the damage and the area it affects," the Columbus spokesman said.

Spokesmen for Canton's Ohio Power, Cleveland Electric Illuminating, Cincinnati Gas & Electric and Toledo Edison generally agreed.

"Historically, power systems are built with this in mind," said an Ohio Power spokesman. "By dispersing units we can lose one without knocking out the others. I'm not saying (a massive outage) can't happen under a certain combination of circumstances, but safeguards are built in with this idea."

"And in addition to our own strong system, we have the back-up of interconnection through American Electric Power System, which has customers in seven states," the spokesman said.

ARSON? — Investigators from the State Fire Marshall's office are attempting to determine the cause of an 11:05 a.m. Thursday blaze which destroyed a large barn and its contents. The 100 foot by 40 foot barn, owned by Harry Hedges, 16603 Lockbourne-Eastern Road, was involved in flames upon the arrival of the Harrison Twp. Fire Department. Additional fire aid was rendered by the Circleville Twp., Pickaway Twp., and

Rickenbacker Air Force Base departments. Destroyed with the structure were 800 bales of straw, three Farmall tractors, a two-row corn planter, a wheat drill, a hay mower, a spike tooth arrow, a snow blade, and an elevator. Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Jim Dixon requested the state investigation because of the incidence of fire in Harrison Twp.

Natural Gas Deregulation Nixed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's energy program is ready for consideration in a special house committee largely as he wanted it with the defeat of a proposal to de-regulate natural gas.

After days of fierce lobbying on both sides of the natural gas issue, the house commerce committee voted 23-20 on Thursday against a compromise de-regulation proposal.

The compromise included a windfall profits tax on natural gas producers, a move to blunt White House charges that deregulation amounted to a $70 billion ripoff of consumers.

Committee members had a choice between two arguments:

The natural gas industry and its allies contend there would be an ample supply of gas if producers were free of federal controls and could strike the best deal possible for natural gas. Potential profits would encourage exploration for new gas fields, they said.

But the Carter administration said

controls should be continued, allowing a slight rise in price. The increase should be sufficient incentive for producers to look for and pump more gas, administration forces said.

Proponents of deregulation warned of further shortages and job layoffs unless controls were removed. But Rep. Charles Carney, D-Ohio, cautioned, "You'll have all the gas you want, but you can't afford to use it."

The committee earlier had given Carter much of what he wanted on most of the non-tax aspects of his national energy plan. The panel approved:

—Voluntary standards for home insulation to conserve energy.

—A grant program for improving school and hospital energy conservation.

—Standards for more efficient major home appliances.

—Revisions in electricity rate pricing.

—Broad administration authority to prod utilities and industry to switch from oil and natural gas fuels to coal.

The House Ways and Means Committee, which completed work earlier on other portions of Carter's energy package, approved several provisions the President sought.

The panel passed a gas-guzzler tax, a new crude oil tax with rebates to homeowners who heat their residences with oil, tax credits for persons who install insulation and a carrot-and-stick mechanism to encourage a dramatic installation shift from oil and gas to coal.

But the committee rejected the President's proposal for a standby gasoline tax and a rebate for small car buyers.

The new energy committee, a special panel established by the House leadership to examine the energy plan in its entirety, plans to merge the work of the other panels into final legislative form.

The full House hopes to begin work on the package Aug. 1 and complete it within a week.

Sohio OKs Consent Agreement

CLEVELAND (AP) — A consent decree signed by the Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) and the Federal Trade Commission ends a six-year dispute between Sohio and some of its dealers.

Under terms of the decree announced Thursday, dealers are not required to sell Sohio tires, batteries and accessories on an exclusive basis.

The decree also provides that Sohio will offer new dealerships lease agreements for a three-to-five-year period.

Most Sohio dealers have been operating on a month-to-month basis.

"It took us six years to achieve this, but we won" said James V. Cresente, executive director of the Northern Ohio Petroleum Retailers Association.

He said one reason Sohio had agreed to the decree was that the company decided it needs additional dealers.

Sohio declined comment on that statement.

Robert G. Griffin, Sohio vice president for marketing, said the consent decree "reaffirms Sohio's long-standing marketing policies and practices."

"I believe the combination of longer term leases and the availability of impartial arbitration for certain cancellation disputes confirms Sohio's long-standing commitment to deal fairly with its independent dealers," he said.

The order stipulates that dealer agreements may not be canceled prior to expiration except for "good cause." It also permits dealers to appeal cancellation decisions to the American Arbitration Association.

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market headed higher today as full trading resumed after the New York power blackout.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gained more than a point in early trading.

Advances took a 3-2 lead over declines among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was brisk amid an accumulation of orders which could not be executed Thursday, when exchanges in New York and some regional exchanges were closed because of the power failure that hit the nation's largest city Wednesday night.

As expected, shares of Consolidated Edison of New York, the utility which suffered the power blackout, were delayed in opening this morning because of an imbalance of orders.

Otherwise, analysts said buying was encouraged by the 11 per cent second quarter earnings gain reported by International Business Machines Thursday.

IBM, the No. 1 holding of investing institutions, had posted only a 5.3 per cent profit increase in the first quarter.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average was off .42 at 902.99.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a very slight margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 23.16 million shares, against 22.47 million Thursday.

The NYSE's composite index rose .10 to 54.70.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .87 at 122.64.

Carter Finds Promises Not Easy To Keep

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year ago tonight, Jimmy Carter introduced himself to the nation. He began with just a touch of irony, by recalling the obscurity of his first campaign days.

"My name is Jimmy Carter and I'm running for president," he said, as he had on countless street corners in two years of campaigning.

There are other ironic echoes on the anniversary of the Democratic National Convention that sent Carter on his way to the White House.

For items that were relatively simple and certain when the Democrats were celebrating at Madison Square Garden now have yielded to the incredible complexities of the presidency.

Thus Carter, who seeks the ultimate elimination of nuclear weapons from all the world's arsenals, has decided tentatively that the United States should have a new variety in its arsenal.

And while Carter once spoke of U.S. arms sales as an unsavory, cynical business, his administration concedes the difficulties of drastically cutting the traffic. Carter has instituted a policy of restraint, but it seems to leave more room for the weapons trade than did his campaign statements on the same point.

"I think one of the concepts that must be avoided is an exact description ahead of time of what I, as president, would do under every conceivable circumstance," he said Tuesday, avoiding the question of how and when the United States might use nuclear weapons in the event of war in Europe.

That has been the position of his predecessors and it will almost surely be the position of his successors: on matters of defense, the one man who can make the decisions must not tell the world what they would be.

So Carter favors an appropriation to go ahead with production of the neutron bomb, which would kill people with radiation while minimizing damage to buildings and surroundings. He says it should be one of the options available to the United States.

Carter also said that his position on that weapon did not alter the campaign pledge he repeated in his inaugural address: "We will move this year a step toward our ultimate goal — the elimination of all nuclear weapons from this earth."

The President said the neutron bomb shouldn't affect strategic arms limitation efforts because it is designed as a tactical weapon, for battlefield use. He also said it isn't a new weapon.

But Carter the campaigner seemed to have a different view of such nuclear weapons refinements. He told a United Nations conference that arms limitation talks should address not only the quantity but the quality of nuclear weapons, so as to halt the arms race in technology as well as in numbers. Carter was talking about strategic weapons, but in terms that would have seemed to cover the neutron weapon he now is considering.

Decisions, clearly, are more complicated from the inside.

So, too, on the question of U.S. arms sales abroad, a major target of Carter's campaign criticism. "Sometimes we try to justify this unsavory business on the cynical ground that by rationing out the means of violence we can somehow control the world's violence," he said shortly before his nomination.

Carter said that as president, he would work with U.S. allies, and would try to work with the Soviet Union, to reduce the world commerce in weapons.

He has indeed ordered restraint in U.S. arms sales and shipments abroad, while acknowledging that it will take the cooperation of other nations to curb the worldwide weapons trade.

And his administration has told Congress that the United States, "within the context of a policy of restraint, will continue to utilize arms transfers where necessary to promote our own strategic interests, the security of our allies and close friends, and world peace."

At the same time, that administration report warns that other nations, including the Soviet Union, might try to move in, to take over U.S. arms customers and clients.

That is exactly the argument past administrations have used to support their arms sales policies. If the United States wouldn't make the deal, they said, then someone else would — and in the process, Washington would lose its influence over the situation.

While Carter once discounted that reasoning, his report to Congress concedes the problem it poses for his effort to curb weapons sales abroad:

"If others begin to fill the vacuum we leave, the pressures in this country to loosen the bonds of restraint could become substantial."

Jury Views Adult Films During Trial

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The jury in the "Deep Throat" obscenity trial had the best seats in the movie house Thursday to see first hand what the furor was all about.

For 2½ hours, eight men and four women watched "Deep Throat," another adult movie called "Swing High" and five previews of adult films.

It was part of the proceedings in the retrial of three men and two corporations which are charged with interstate transportation of an obscene film.

A jury in 1973 convicted all five, but the U.S. Supreme Court reversed those convictions because the jury failed to use the proper standards to determine obscenity.

Federal marshals were stationed throughout the Cinema X theater in nearby Newport, Ky, as the jury entered to regulate who was allowed inside the theater.

One representative from each local television, radio or newspaper was allowed to attend the special screening.

A courtroom atmosphere was injected briefly into the morning's proceedings when during a break between movies the court stenographer was called to the front of the theater to record a conversation between the judge and attorneys.

After viewing the movies, the jury went back to U.S. District Court here where regular testimony was resumed.

Lien Bill Approved

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Consumers would have legal recourse against holders of installment notes when merchandise proves defective, under legislation approved 85-3 by the House.

Repeal of the holder-in-due course doctrine was placed in the hands of the Senate Thursday after the 85-3 favorable vote in the House.

Rep. Edward J. Orlett, D-34 Dayton, sponsor of the bill, said it would guarantee that a purchaser could use the same claims against a holder of a note for a faulty product as he could against the original retail seller.

"The seller, mindful of the holder-in-due course doctrine, negotiates or assigns the note and contract for value to a third party, usually a finance company."

If the merchandise proves defective, the buyer often has no recourse but to withhold installment payments from the finance company—the holder in due course—which then sues for payment, Orlett said.

Carter Finds Promises Not Easy To Keep

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year ago tonight, Jimmy Carter introduced himself to the nation. He began with just a touch of irony, by recalling the obscurity of his first campaign days.

"My name is Jimmy Carter and I'm running for president," he said, as he had on countless street corners in two years of campaigning.

There are other ironic echoes on the anniversary of the Democratic National Convention that sent Carter on his way to the White House.

For items that were relatively simple and certain when the Democrats were celebrating at Madison Square Garden now have yielded to the incredible complexities of the presidency.

Thus Carter, who seeks the ultimate elimination of nuclear weapons from all the world's arsenals, has decided tentatively that the United States should have a new variety in its arsenal.

And while Carter once spoke of U.S. arms sales as an unsavory, cynical business, his administration concedes the difficulties of drastically cutting the traffic. Carter has instituted a policy of restraint, but it seems to leave more room for the weapons trade than did his campaign statements on the same point.

"I think one of the concepts that must be avoided is an exact description ahead of time of what I, as president, would do under every conceivable circumstance," he said Tuesday, avoiding the question of how and when the United States might use nuclear weapons in the event of war in Europe.

That has been the position of his predecessors and it will almost surely be the position of his successors: on matters of defense, the one man who can make the decisions must not tell the world what they would be.

So Carter favors an appropriation to go ahead with production of the neutron bomb, which would kill people with radiation while minimizing damage to buildings and surroundings. He says it should be one of the options available to the United States.

Carter also said that his position on that weapon did not alter the campaign pledge he repeated in his inaugural address: "We will move this year a step toward our ultimate goal — the elimination of all nuclear weapons from this earth."

The President said the neutron bomb shouldn't affect strategic arms limitation efforts because it is designed as a tactical weapon, for battlefield use. He also said it isn't a new weapon.

But Carter the campaigner seemed to have a different view of such nuclear weapons refinements. He told a United Nations conference that arms limitation talks should address not only the quantity but the quality of nuclear weapons, so as to halt the arms race in technology as well as in numbers. Carter was talking about strategic weapons, but in terms that would have seemed to cover the neutron weapon he now is considering.

Decisions, clearly, are more complicated from the inside.

So, too, on the question of U.S. arms sales abroad, a major target of Carter's campaign criticism. "Sometimes we try to justify this unsavory business on the cynical ground that by rationing out the means of violence we can somehow control the world's violence," he said shortly before his nomination.

Carter said that as president, he would work with U.S. allies, and would try to work with the Soviet Union, to reduce the world commerce in weapons.

He has indeed ordered restraint in U.S. arms sales and shipments abroad, while acknowledging that it will take the cooperation of other nations to curb the worldwide weapons trade.

And his administration has told Congress that the United States, "within the context of a policy of restraint, will continue to utilize arms transfers where necessary to promote our own strategic interests, the security of our allies and close friends, and world peace."

At the same time, that administration report warns that other nations, including the Soviet Union, might try to move in, to take over U.S. arms customers and clients.

That is exactly the argument past administrations have used to support their arms sales policies. If the United States wouldn't make the deal, they said, then someone else would — and in the process, Washington would lose its influence over the situation.

While Carter once discounted that reasoning, his report to Congress concedes the problem it poses for his effort to curb weapons sales abroad:

"If others begin to fill the vacuum we leave, the pressures in this country to loosen the bonds of restraint could become substantial."

Jury Views Adult Films During Trial

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The jury in the "Deep Throat" obscenity trial had the best seats in the movie house Thursday to see first hand what the furor was all about.

For 2½ hours, eight men and four women watched "Deep Throat," another adult movie called "Swing High" and five previews of adult films.

It was part of the proceedings in the retrial of three men and two corporations which are charged with interstate transportation of an obscene film.

A jury in 1973 convicted all five, but the U.S. Supreme Court reversed those convictions because the jury failed to use the proper standards to determine obscenity.

Federal marshals were stationed throughout the Cinema X theater in nearby Newport, Ky., as the jury entered to regulate who was allowed inside the theater.

One representative from each local television, radio or newspaper was allowed to attend the special screening.

A courtroom atmosphere was injected briefly into the morning's proceedings when during a break between movies the court stenographer was called to the front of the theater to record a conversation between the judge and attorneys.

After viewing the movies, the jury went back to U.S. District Court here where regular testimony was resumed.

Cincy Gets Kutler Case

CLEVELAND (AP) — Both defense and prosecution lawyers expressed pleasure with Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court Judge Harry A. Hanna's decision to move the murder trial of Dr. Stuart S. Kutler to Cincinnati.

The defense had asked for the change because of the publicity given the disappearance of 8-year-old Arthur Noske, whom Kutler, 31, is accused of beating to death.

But the prosecution also asked for a switch, declaring that for the same reason they might have trouble establishing the credibility of their star witness, Arthur's mother, Ann Noske.

Miss Noske, 32, told police Feb. 8 that the child had wandered away from her while she was shopping at Parmatown mall.

But the following week, after continued questioning by police, she said Kutler, with whom she had been living, had beaten the boy to death and disposed of the body.

Authorities have been unable to find any trace of the child and Kutler has pleaded innocent to the charge.

Hanna questioned prospective jurors for two days before ruling that "it's unlikely that we can pick a jury."

He said he has received permission from the Ohio Supreme Court to go to Cincinnati to hear the case. The trial is to start Aug. 1.

The hot, sultry weather that has dogged Ohio the past week will continue through the weekend with scattered showers and thundershowers.

Temperatures are expected to climb daily into the mid 90s as humid air spreads north from the Gulf of Mexico. A cold front moving through northern Ohio tonight is expected to become stationary across central Ohio Saturday, producing thundershowers along and ahead of its path tonight and Saturday.

Early morning temperatures brought some temporary relief, falling as low as the mid 60s in the southeastern counties, but the mercury was expected to climb right back into the 90s by afternoon.

Sweden Gets Princess

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Queen Silvia has given birth to a princess, a joyous occasion for Swedes but one that left open the question of who will succeed to the throne. The centuries-old monarchy does not allow female succession.

Doctors at the Karolinska Hospital reported that both the baby girl and the 33-year old German-born queen were doing well.

King Carl XVI Gustaf, who was present during the delivery on Thursday, is the first Swedish monarch in 199 years to become a father during his reign. It was also the first royal birth in a public hospital.

The king, 31, married the former Silvia Renate Sommerlath, a West German commoner, last June in a wedding that drew worldwide attention. It was Sweden's first royal wedding in 179 years.

'One On One' Has Some Flaws

By FRED ROTHENBERG

AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "It was the most important game of the year and I was sitting on the bench. First one guard fouled out, then the other. I knew I had to get the chance to play. There was no choice."

"We were down by three points with three minutes left when I got in. I made a quick steal, then hit a jumper from the top of the key. We were down by one."

"They came down the court and missed, and we got the ball back with less than 10 seconds left. I make a move to the basket, but I'm fouled. It's up to me, a one-and-one situation with just four seconds left."

"The first shot goes up; it's good. Then the second; it's good. My teammates and the crowd surge on to the court and lift me up and down. I remember a lot of people hugging and grabbing me."

Although this scene is very similar to a dramatic situation in the new film, "One On One," it's not cinema, but the real stuff.

"It was the biggest game I ever played," said Frank Alagia Jr., former standout guard at St. John's University, referring to a high school championship game held nearly a decade ago.

Alagia, who graduated from St. John's in 1976 after a celebrated four-year college career, reminisced recently after seeing the movie "One On One," starring 20-year-old Robby Benson as the fancy freshman flash, Henry Steele.

"I could identify with Henry Steele right away," said Alagia.

"I had no trouble relating to his size. We're both 5-10. He was recruited highly, so was I. And I could really relate to his desire to succeed. Deep down, there was nothing more I wanted to do than become a bigtime college basketball player."

"A lot of the movie was just how it was for me."

The film, as uplifting as a dunk shot, portrays one man's crusade against the inhumanity and degradation of college basketball, which is depicted in the film as a semi-professional sport.

"I wouldn't be fooling anybody if I said under-the-table deals aren't available to the top recruits," said Alagia. "I got 250 letters, narrowed them to some 75 schools before it finally came down to four schools—all of them above board."

Jobless Claims Take Big Jump

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Initial claims for benefits under the regular Ohio Unemployment Compensation Law jumped 13.8 per cent during the week ending July 9, compared to the previous week.

Albert G. Giles, Ohio Bureau of Employment Services administrator, said 15,901 newly unemployed persons filed initial claims, nearly 2,000 more than the previous week. It was the largest number of initial claims in one week since the week ending Feb. 19, 1977, when the total was 17,576.

There were 3,107 claims under other programs last week, for a total of 19,008 initial claims, a 16.2 per cent increase over the previous week.

"I would say about 5-10 per cent of the schools wanted to give me something illegal. The inducements ranged from free clothing to cars to $100 a week for 12 months a year."

But Alagia, winner of the Francis P. Naismith Award in 1976 as the outstanding player under six feet in the nation, says the picture painted by the film, at times, was out of focus.

"The portrayal of the coach was very shady," said Alagia, who is now a government bond broker on Wall St. "This is really where my career and Henry's career breaks off. The coaches in the movie were completely different than the coaches I've come across. Coach (Lou) Carnesecca (of St. John's) was a human being while the guy in the movie just had a heart of stone. He had no feelings. I don't believe there's ever been a coach like that."

A Page Of Opinion

Air Bag Gamble

Early in his tenure as Transportation Secretary, Brock Adams made clear his intention to abandon the trial period for auto air bags approved by his predecessor and go all out for mandatory passive restraints. The Adams plan has been unveiled and unless Congress vetoes it within 60 days, it will become law.

Beginning in the 1982 model year, larger cars will be required to come equipped with either air bags or automatic seat restraints and by 1984 all cars will have one or the other. The cost to the consumer could range up to $300 for the added safety feature.

Looking to the day when all cars have the restraints, Adams said it should then be possible to reduce annual highway fatalities by 9,000. Possibly so, although that day will be well into the future. Even after all new cars are equipped, millions of older models will remain in use.

There is, of course, the potential problem of proving the worth of a crash program involving conceivably billions of dollars in added cost to the consumer over a period of years, especially with a product which so far has been tested largely with handmade models.

And what if the consumer decides to abort the system, whether bags or belts? He has done it before with assorted buzzers and other warning systems. Although all cars have been equipped with lap belts for years, by Adams' own admission only about 25 per cent of the drivers use them.

If the average motorist's antipathy to safety features is that great, he will find a way of disconnecting even the passive restraints. Both the reliability of the air bags and the public's acceptance of them remain untested.

Chinatown Gangs

By JIM BISHOP

The Chinese, it is said, invented the human family. Long before the Old Testament was written, or Orientals decided that when a man impregnates a woman he assumes responsibility as her protector, her provider and the disciplined upbringing of their children.

In New York, the cops of the Elizabeth Street precinct knew that a juvenile bureau detective could patrol Chinatown for a year without busting a boy for anything more heinous than a fight in a schoolyard. The youngsters were the most polite, the most obedient in the five boroughs.

This was not true of some of the fathers. They banded together in societies called tongs. Immigrants joined either the Hip Sings or the On Leongs, depending on their family names.

Chinese in America had no civil rights. They worked at starvation wages for cracked rice bowls. The rich Chinese bent the backs of the poor. In time — especially in New York — the philosophy of neo-slavery led to tong wars.

The weapon of choice was not a gun. I was an axe. Hip Sings and On Leongs chopped heads off. The white man was unable to find the cause of these wars, or even the results. The Chinese seldom confided more than a smile to Caucasian authority.

The tongs survived. The one continuing crime was gambling. Chinese men gathered in gloomy flats to play fan tan. Sometimes they were raided; frequently the police of the Elizabeth Street precinct permitted the games to flourish.

Suddenly, the world of Chinatown has changed. In a decade, the polite, passive boys have abandoned filial devotion to imitate their white brothers in vicious crime. In New York, they call themselves "Ghost Shadows," "Black Eagles," "White Eagles."

A boy in high school, no matter how high his moral standards, must join or face sudden violence. They attend kung fu movies to laugh and disrupt the audience. A half-dozen "Flying Dragons" walked into the darkened Pagoda Theatre and fired a fusillade.

Peter Chin, 18, was wounded. David Wong, 19, was killed.

Traditionally, Chinatown has remained small — Mott Street, Pell Street, Bayard, and a few alleys extending toward Chatham Square. The population remained constant: 10,000. In 1965, immigration barriers were lifted. In 1977, 40,000 Chinese are jammed into the same topographical area.

An additional 100,000 have edged the Italians out of "Little Italy." The young gangs stand sullen in police stations. They admit nothing, except to say that they will not kill "lo fon" (non-Chinese). The new wave comes mostly from Hong Kong. They speak Cantonese and have great difficulty with English.

They will not follow the path of their fathers. None of the gang members will work in laundries, restaurants or Oriental souvenir shops. Today, they sell protection to their fathers.

If the Flying Dragons feel that the Ghost Shadows are shaking down a merchant on the wrong street, five or six will get in an automobile, drive around the block, and shoot groups of youths on command.

Firm Manager Held In Slaying

CLEVELAND (AP)—The manager of Proficient Industries in Cleveland was charged with murder Wednesday for the shooting death of Ronald Beattie.

Beattie, 18, of Cleveland, was shot Tuesday after a companion was caught siphoning gasoline from a truck at the firm. Police identified the manager as Herman Herman, 47, of Cleveland.

Uniform Speed Limit Bill OK'd

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Senate has sent Gov. James A. Rhodes a bill that would establish a uniform 55 mile per hour speed limit, both day and night, on Ohio highways.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Don S. Maddux, D-90 Lancaster, removes 50 mile limits for trucks and commercial tractors weighing more than 4,000 pounds when empty. The same limit applies to school buses and street cars when operated on state highways outside cities and all motor vehicles on those roadways at night.

Senators approved the uniform 55 standard in a 30-0 vote.

Linen is made from the long fibers of the woody stem of the flax plant.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Since we moved to this town several years ago I started clipping and saving your columns. Now I wish to get hold of some of your old columns that I missed. How would I go about this?

Mrs. B. DeW., Ind.

Dear Mrs. De W.:

Thank you for your interest in my columns. This pleases me very much. Because I have had similar inquiries from many readers, I have been prompted to compile many of my medical columns in a book which has just been published.

It's "All Your Medical Questions Answered" (Hearst Books, N.Y., $9.95). The book represents a collection of what I felt were the most significant and most often asked questions by my readers.

These answers are aimed at specific medical problems. And, as you know from reading my columns, I constantly try to replace fear and anxiety with a feeling of encouragement and hope, based on the newest advances in medical science.

I have had a hernia in my groin for 20 years. Even though I wear a truss the hernia seems to be getting bigger lately. I'm 67. Am I too old for an operation of this sort?

Mr. W. N., Pa.

Dear Mr. N.:

The truss that you've been wearing for 20 years was not meant to be a cure for a hernia. Rather, it was meant to protect you from one of the complications of hernias, which is to keep a loop of intestine from getting trapped in the hernial opening. When this does happen, and it cannot be pushed back, a surgical emergency may arise.

When a hernial opening becomes so large that the truss is no longer effective there is always the possibility of this or other complications.

You undoubtedly by now have exhausted the value of a truss. Should your doctor decide on surgery, you may be certain that there is no unusual risk because you are 67.

Refined surgical techniques, the speed of surgery and the safety of modern anesthesia make it possible for surgeons to operate successfully on patients who are much older than you.

Convicted Nurses Temporarily Freed

DETROIT (AP) — Over strong government objections, a judge Thursday permitted two nurses convicted of poisoning hospital patients to remain free on bond.

"From the record, trial and pretrial hearings, the court doesn't see any indication the defendants will flee," said U.S. District Court Judge Philip Pratt in continuing bond of $75,000 each for Leonora Perez, 33, and Filipina Narciso, 31.

"Certainly they could have done so long ago and there's no question they could do so now. But they did not and the court is convinced they will not."

Mrs. Perez, of Ann Arbor, and Miss Narciso, of Ypsilanti, were convicted Wednesday on three counts each of poisoning patients at the Ann Arbor Veterans Administration Hospital in the summer of 1975.

Each also was convicted on one count of conspiracy. Miss Narciso was acquitted on one murder count and one other count of poisoning.

They could be sentenced to life in prison. Pratt said he will impose sentence after getting a report from probation officers, expected to take a month to six weeks.

Asst. U.S. Attorney Richard Delonis argued for revocation of bail, saying the possible punishment was so severe anyone would consider running away. The defendants, Philippine citizens who have lived in this country for six years, "have little to hold them here if they decide to go," Delonis said.

The United States has no extradition treaty with the Philippines, he noted. "There is no way the American judicial process can bring them back. To stay they have nothing to gain and very much to lose."

Defense attorney Michael Moran argued the nurses' ties to the community "are obvious. Just look around and you see they have a great number of ties."

The courtroom was packed with supporters of the defendants, many wearing blue ribbons in the form of upside down V's distributed by other nurses from the hospital.

Outside, scores of nurses from a Philippine nurses group marched around the courthouse to show their support.

Meanwhile, the convicted nurses said they were shocked by the verdicts and disillusioned with the U.S. justice system.

Tipps Sued By Home

CINCINNATI (AP) — Paul Tipps, chairman of the Ohio Democratic Party and one of the nation's most active developers of federal housing projects, was sued Wednesday for more than $37,000 by a nursing home firm which alleges he never paid for property he purchased in 1973.

The foreclosure suit was filed in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court by Lamko Inc., a Cincinnati nursing home concern.

Tipps could not be reached for comment. However, in court documents filed during the last 19 months in Dayton, Tipps and his associates claim they owe Lamko only $5,000.

Tipps had received a $172,311 federally-insured loan to rehabilitate the property, according to HUD officials and court documents.

The Lamko suit asks foreclosure on the mortgage, appointment of a receiver to control the property's assets and sale of the property to pay off the balance owed Lamko.

Rhodes Receives Teacher Measure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State representatives went along with Senate amendments and sent Gov. James A. Rhodes on Wednesday a major bill establishing tenure procedures for public school teachers. The final vote was 60-36.

Rep. Michael P. Stinziano's bill, which also requires school boards to evaluate teacher performances, is similar to one vetoed by Rhodes during the last legislature.

A governor's aide said Wednesday he didn't know what Rhodes will do this time. However, the latest measure contains areas of compromise between teacher groups and school administrators which were not in the earlier one, said Stinziano, D-30 Columbus.

NEW YORK (AP) — A new booklet produced by two environmental groups said to be a guide to 60 industrialists for responsible investors, is based on out-dated and perhaps misleading data.

The publication, "The Pollution Audit," was published by The Council of Economic Priorities with encouragement and a small grant from the Sierra Club.

Copywritten this year, and with a forward signed Feb. 21, by Michael McCloskey, executive director of the Sierra Club, the data nevertheless are from studies that are from five to seven years old.

The original studies by the council, a nonprofit organization were exhaustive and generally highly regarded, even by some of the companies criticized. Since then, however, public concern, legislation, and company efforts have resulted in considerable pollution abatement.

American Can Co., which was ranked among the worst of pulp and paper polluters, maintains it is now "in complete compliance" with state and federal regulations on air and water standards.

A spokesman said that since the original data were compiled in 1970 the company has spent $40.6 million for air and water compliance at pulp and mill sites and has won numerous citations, including a clean water award this month from the Izaak Walton League.

Told of this, Alice Tepper Marlin, founder and executive director of the council, indicated the information in the booklet nevertheless might be useful because it was the only data available.

Asked why the findings weren't updated before publication, especially since it was acknowledged several years ago that American Can "had budgeted adequate equipment even if it wasn't installed," she replied "Because checking it, updating it, takes one and half years and $40,000-$60,000."

The booklet also ranks, in relation to each other, the companies making up the iron and steel, petroleum refining and electric utility industries, again based on studies made several years ago.

Mrs. Marlin said two of these studies, of steel and utilities, are now being brought up to date, perhaps for publication later this summer. Conceivably, these studies could make substantial changes in the rankings of companies.

They'll Do It Every Time

A Page Of Opinion

Air Bag Gamble

Early in his tenure as Transportation Secretary, Brock Adams made clear his intention to abandon the trial period for auto air bags approved by his predecessor and go all out for mandatory passive restraints. The Adams plan has been unveiled and unless Congress vetoes it within 60 days, it will become law.

Beginning in the 1982 model year, larger cars will be required to come equipped with either air bags or automatic seat restraints and by 1984 all cars will have one or the other. The cost to the consumer could range up to $300 for the added safety feature.

Looking to the day when all cars have the restraints, Adams said it should then be possible to reduce annual highway fatalities by 9,000. Possibly so, although that day will be well into the future. Even after all new cars are equipped, millions of older models will remain in use.

There is, of course, the potential problem of proving the worth of a crash program involving conceivably billions of dollars in added cost to the consumer over a period of years, especially with a product which so far has been tested largely with handmade models.

And what if the consumer decides to abort the system, whether bags or belts? He has done it before with assorted buzzers and other warning systems. Although all cars have been equipped with lap belts for years, by Adams' own admission only about 25 per cent of the drivers use them.

If the average motorist's antipathy to safety features is that great, he will find a way of disconnecting even the passive restraints. Both the reliability of the air bags and the public's acceptance of them remain untested.

Chinatown Gangs

By JIM BISHOP

The Chinese, it is said, invented the human family. Long before the Old Testament was written, or Orientals decided that when a man impregnates a woman he assumes responsibility as her protector, her provider and the disciplined upbringing of their children.

In New York, the cops of the Elizabeth Street precinct knew that a juvenile bureau detective could patrol Chinatown for a year without busting a boy for anything more heinous than a fight in a schoolyard. The youngsters were the most polite, the most obedient in the five boroughs.

This was not true of some of the fathers. They banded together in societies called tongs. Immigrants joined either the Hip Sings or the On Leongs, depending on their family names.

Chinese in America had no civil rights. They worked at starvation wages for cracked rice bowls. The rich Chinese bent the backs of the poor. In time — especially in New York — the philosophy of neo-slavery led to tong wars.

The weapon of choice was not a gun. I was an axe. Hip Sings and On Leongs chopped heads off. The white man was unable to find the cause of these wars, or even the results. The Chinese seldom confided more than a smile to Caucasian authority.

The tongs survived. The one continuing crime was gambling. Chinese men gathered in gloomy flats to play fan tan. Sometimes they were raided; frequently the police of the Elizabeth Street precinct permitted the games to flourish.

Suddenly, the world of Chinatown has changed. In a decade, the polite, passive boys have abandoned filial devotion to imitate their white brothers in vicious crime. In New York, they call themselves "Ghost Shadows," "Black Eagles," "White Eagles."

A boy in high school, no matter how high his moral standards, must join or face sudden violence. They attend kung fu movies to laugh and disrupt the audience. A half-dozen "Flying Dragons" walked into the darkened Pagoda Theatre and fired a fusillade.

Peter Chin, 18, was wounded. David Wong, 19, was killed.

Traditionally, Chinatown has remained small — Mott Street, Pell Street, Bayard, and a few alleys extending toward Chatham Square. The population remained constant: 10,000. In 1965, immigration barriers were lifted. In 1977, 40,000 Chinese are jammed into the same topographical area.

An additional 100,000 have edged the Italians out of "Little Italy." The young gangs stand sullen in police stations. They admit nothing, except to say that they will not kill "lo fon" (non-chinese). The new wave comes mostly from Hong Kong. They speak Cantonese and have great difficulty with English.

They will not follow the path of their fathers. None of the gang members will work in laundries, restaurants or Oriental souvenir shops. Today, they sell protection to their fathers.

The "Ching Lees", for example, will post armed young guards outside a gambling den for a price. They will also escort winners home in safety. The more articulate of the young men visit restaurants and offer protection against broken windows, fires and sporadic gunfire.

It is cheaper to pay than defy. A few of the more brazen boys take their girls to restaurants, eat well, and sign the bill, "White Eagles" or "Ghost Shadows." The waiters do not protest.

Each gang has its turf. The members do not wear leather jackets or long hair as symbols of identification. They are into crime not for machismo but for money. A high school dropout who cannot speak 30 words of English can earn $300 a week for extorting, shooting and splitting heads.

If the Flying Dragons feel that the Ghost Shadows are shaking down a merchant on the wrong street, five or six will get in an automobile, drive around the block, and shoot groups of youths on command.

Nobody talks. Berkeley Rice interviewed Joseph Mei of the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association. Mr. Mei smiled. "We have no problem at all about youth gangs here in Chinatown," he said. A policeman said, "If a kid is pulling down $300 a week in a gang, what are you going to offer him — a job in a laundry?"

Owens-Illinois Reports Record Second Quarter

TOLEDO — Owens-Illinois Inc., had record sales, earnings, and earnings per common share in the second quarter of 1977, Edwin D. Dodd, chairman and chief executive officer, reported today.

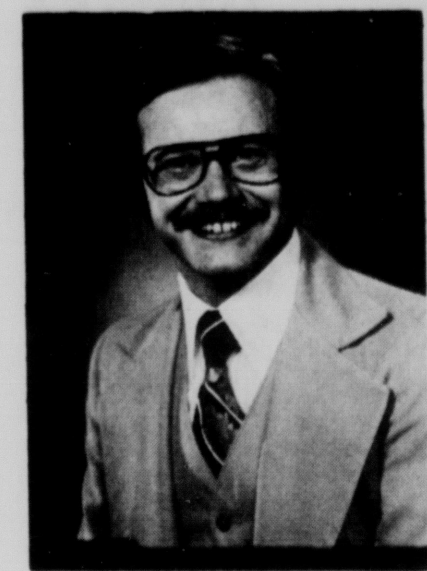

"While sales increased by about eight per cent from the second quarter of 1976, earnings growth did not keep pace," Dodd said. "Most operations experienced rapidly rising costs without sufficient productivity or price increases to offset the increased costs."

Second-quarter sales were $687.8 million, compared with $637.5 million in the second quarter of 1976. Earnings increased to $32.7 million from $31.8 million, before an extraordinary gain, in the second quarter last year.

Earnings amounted to $1.12 per common share, compared with $1.01 per share before the gain last year. The per-share figures for 1976 have been restated to reflect the effect of a 100 per cent dividend on Owens-Illinois common stock on March 21 this year.

Fewer common shares were outstanding in the second quarter of 1977

Dr. Rocklin is a June graduate of the Ohio State University College of Optometry, and recently passed the Ohio State Board Examination for his license to practice in Ohio. He has been working as an assistant in Drs. Goldschmidt and Liggett's office during his last year at Ohio State.

Dr. Rocklin is originally from Cincinnati, where he attended LaSalle High School and the University of Cincinnati. He is a veteran of four years in the U. S. Air Force, serving in North Carolina and Germany.

His main leisure time interests are in the area of aviation. He has been a skydiver for over six years, and now plans to take up flying as well. Dr. Rocklin and his wife, Denise, will reside here in Circleville.

Farrar Reunion Set

The sixth annual Farrar Reunion will be held at Gold Cliff Park beginning noon July 31.

A clump of peonies planted in a backyard garden in Van Wert about 75 years ago pushed the city into becoming the peony center of the Middle West. Neighbors caught the fever until almost every little home plot along principal streets bloomed in early summer; growers planted acres of them and went to France and England for rare types. The city's peony festival became a national event.—AP

Answers For Veterans

EDITOR'S NOTE: Each week the Circleville Herald will publish a series of questions and answers of interest to veterans. These questions are some of the many presented to James P. Shea, Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer. Any veteran desiring further information on any question presented in this column, or having any questions concerning the benefits of the Veterans Administration should contact the Veterans Service Officer at 219 S. Court St.

(Q.) I am a retired military member who provides more than 50 per cent of the support of my parents. May they receive care at military hospitals? Are they eligible for Champus?

(A.) Parents and parents-in-law who are more than 50 per cent financially dependent upon the retired service member, and who reside with or reside in a dwelling maintained by the retiree, are eligible for care at military hospitals. They are not, however, entitled to Champus benefits.

(Q.) My husband still has his mother listed as beneficiary of his World War II National Service Life Insurance. In his will he has designated a change of beneficiary, naming me, and then our children as contingent beneficiaries. He says all I have to do is send a copy of the will to the VA and I will get the insurance proceeds. Is that the way it works?

(A.) No. Wills cannot change beneficiaries named on life insurance policies issued by the VA. The VA has no choice but to pay the person of record. To ensure that beneficiary designations are up to date, the insured should fill out VA for 29-336, "Designation of Beneficiary," and return it to the VA insurance center where he pay his premium. Your Veterans Service Officer has these forms, and can assist you in completing them.

(Q.) I have heard a rumor that veterans in training under the GI Bill will not receive their regular allowance, check on the first of the month. Is this correct?

(A.) Regular monthly benefits no longer will be prepaid at the beginning of each month after May 1977. Regular monthly checks issued on or after June 1, 1977, will represent payment for the preceding month rather than for the current month.

(Q.) How long does a veteran have to get dental treatment if he is not service-connected for a related ailment?

(A.) If a veteran is presently carrying group medical insurance plan and is hospitalized in a VA hospital, will the VA collect from the insurance company?

(A.) Yes. The VA will collect from the insurance company for payment. No responsibility for collection rest on the veteran.

Songwriter Fights Approaching Death

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — After three heart attacks, a mental breakdown, a conviction for bail-jumping and battles with drugs and alcoholism, Chuck Howard found meaning to life.

Howard, 39, is using his talent as a country-pop songwriter and singer to fight heart disease, which he believes will claim his life in five years. You could call his campaign "hits for hearts."

Howard has donated all royalties from a song he wrote, "Life," to the Heart Foundation. He is hoping for hits off his current album, "Chuck Howard," that will make him a celebrity and give him a forum to speak against heart disease.

"I want to try to get a hit record to get the money and power to fight this disease," he said in an interview. "If Hitler had been good, he'd have been great cause he had power."

There's little wonder why he had three heart attacks in 1975. His 37 years were crammed with agony. There was liquor, "a fifth a night." And drugs, "speed, anything I could get my hands on."

Then there was the law — stealing tires as a youngster, jumping bail, a suspended two-year sentence to the Ohio Penitentiary.

"Sounds like a loser, doesn't it?" he asked.

"I found out what life is about when I was about to lose it; I remember waking up and thinking, 'I'm alive.' Someone once said that you don't appreciate life till it's about over. That's what happened to me."

At 20 or so, he spent three weeks in a mental ward in Columbus, Ohio. "The law was chasing me. I had gambled away a home and a car. I was a punk. I just couldn't deal with it."

Writing music became his savior. In 1962, at 24, he wrote "A Thing Called Sadness," recorded by Ray Price, Kitty Wells and others.

A few years later he contributed half the material on Ringo Starr's album "Beaucoup of Blues." Then in the early 1970s, he wrote the soundtrack for the film "A Walk On the Outside" and helped on the screenplay.

Owens-Illinois Reports Record Second Quarter

TOLEDO — Owens-Illinois Inc., had record sales, earnings, and earnings per common share in the second quarter of 1977, Edwin D. Dodd, chairman and chief executive officer, reported today.

"While sales increased by about eight per cent from the second quarter of 1976, earnings growth did not keep pace," Dodd said. "Most operations experienced rapidly rising costs without sufficient productivity or price increases to offset the increased costs."

Second-quarter sales were $687.8 million, compared with $637.5 million in the second quarter of 1976. Earnings increased to $32.7 million from $31.8 million, before an extraordinary gain, in the second quarter last year.

Earnings amounted to $1.12 per common share, compared with $1.01 per share before the gain last year. The per-share figures for 1976 have been restated to reflect the effect of a 100 per cent dividend on Owens-Illinois common stock on March 21 this year.

Fewer common shares were outstanding in the second quarter of 1977

compared with a year ago, which increased per-share earnings by about nine cents. This net reduction in the number of shares outstanding was due mainly to the exchange of about 1.2 million shares of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. common stock owned by the company for almost 2.8 million Owens-Illinois common shares in December last year.

Dodd said the second-quarter results represents a substantial improvement from the first quarter when results were penalized by the effects of the severe winter weather and glass container labor contracts which provided retroactive wage increases.

Sales in the first half of 1977 were $1.37 billion, compared with sales of $1.27 billion in the first six months of 1976. Earnings were $50.6 million, or $1.72 per common share, compared with $55.5 million, or $1.80 per common share, before extraordinary gains, in the first half last year.

Extraordinary gains of $8,249,000, or 28 cents a share, resulted from sales of Owens-Corning Fiberglas common stock in the first half last year, bringing net earnings for that period to $63.7 million, or $2.08 a common share. Of this total, a gain of $273,000 was recorded in the second quarter last year, which brought net earnings for that period to $32.1 million, or $1.01 a common share.

Among Domestic Operations in the second quarter, the Packaging Group results were most seriously affected by the cost-price squeeze. While some areas of the Consumer and Technical Group also failed to match the second quarter performance a year ago, in total the group showed some improvement.

Earnings of International Operations, before exchange rate fluctuations, were ahead of the second quarter of 1976. However, these gains were more than offset by the effects of the exchange rate fluctuations.

Dodd said that because of inflationary pressures the rates of return on investment of basic industries continue to be inadequate to provide the capital needed for replacement and expansion of facilities.

"Barring unforeseen adverse developments in the worldwide economy," Dodd said, "we expect the company to achieve record results in 1977 for the fifth consecutive year."

Miss Myers-Mr. Peters Repeat July Wedding Vows

MR. AND MRS. DONALD EUGENE PETERS

Miss Deborah Sue Myers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kerr Myers, Orient, became the bride of Mr. Donald Eugene Peters, son of Mr. and Mrs.

Harold Peters, Lockbourne. The Rev. Howard Allison officiated at the 6:30 p.m., July 9, ceremony before the altar of the Lockbourne United Methodist Church.

The bride was given in marriage and escorted to the altar by her father. She selected a Victorian style gown of white rose point chantilly lace and organza over bridal taffeta. The dress was designed with an empire bodice, sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves accented with satin bows. The flowing bouffant skirt featured muffled organza at the sides of the hemline which circled into a cathedral length train. She selected a waltz length mantilla bordered with lace. Her flowers were colonial style and featured carnations, baby's breath and mixed greenery.

Mrs. Cheri Werner, was the honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Miss Sandy Dowell, Miss Becky Peters, and Miss Rhonda Peters.

Mr. Keith Peters, brother of the groom performed the duties of best man. Ushers were Mr. Jack Brinker, Mr. David Myers and Mr. Ed Myers, brothers of the bride, Mr. Mike Ramey, and Mr. Jeff Sheets.

The reception was held in the church social rooms following the ceremony. The bride is a graduate of Teays Valley High School and is presently employed at Motorists Insurance Company, Columbus.

The bridegroom is also a graduate of Teays Valley High School and is engaged in farming.

The couple will reside at 12849 Ashville Pike, Ashville.

Ohio Hops With Weekend Activity

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP) — The air will be filled with all sizes, shapes and colors of airplanes around Dayton International Airport next weekend.

The occasion is the Vandalia Air Fair, one of a host of events designed to lure Ohio residents out doors on warm summer days. From Willoughby to Wellston to Cleveland to Crooksville, from every corner of the state, fun seekers can find a place to go and something to entertain them.

The Air Fair is attracting precision military flyers, itty bitty aerobatic planes, parachutists, hot air balloons and a wing of the Confederate Air Force.

The U.S. Air Force is sending its five-plane team of precision pilots for performances on both days, July 23-24. The U.S. Army's Golden Knights will vie with four pretty civilian girls who call themselves the Fallen Angels in parachute jumps.

TV star Robert Conrad of the "Baa Baa Black Sheep" program will serve as grand marshal of the event.

Elsewhere around Ohio there are festivals, craft and antique shows and a number of county fairs during the coming week. By dates, they include:

Her flowers were colonial style and featured carnations, baby's breath and mixed greenery.

Mrs. Cheri Werner, was the honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Miss Sandy Dowell, Miss Becky Peters, and Miss Rhonda Peters.

Mr. Keith Peters, brother of the groom performed the duties of best man. Ushers were Mr. Jack Brinker, Mr. David Myers and Mr. Ed Myers, brothers of the bride, Mr. Mike Ramey, and Mr. Jeff Sheets.

The reception was held in the church social rooms following the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of Teays Valley High School and is presently employed at Motorists Insurance Company, Columbus.

The bridegroom is also a graduate of Teays Valley High School and is engaged in farming.

The couple will reside at 12849 Ashville Pike, Ashville.

Ohio Hops With Weekend Activity

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP) — The air will be filled with all sizes, shapes and colors of airplanes around Dayton International Airport next weekend.

The occasion is the Vandalia Air Fair, one of a host of events designed to lure Ohio residents out doors on warm summer days. From Willoughby to Wellston to Cleveland to Crooksville, from every corner of the state, fun seekers can find a place to go and something to entertain them.

The Air Fair is attracting precision military flyers, itty bitty aerobatic planes, parachutists, hot air balloons and a wing of the Confederate Air Force.

The U.S. Air Force is sending its five-plane team of precision pilots for performances on both days, July 23-24. The U.S. Army's Golden Knights will vie with four pretty civilian girls who call themselves the Fallen Angels in parachute jumps.

TV star Robert Conrad of the "Baa Baa Black Sheep" program will serve as grand marshal of the event.

Elsewhere around Ohio there are festivals, craft and antique shows and a number of county fairs during the coming week. By dates, they include:

July 16-17: Greene Countrie Towne Festival winds up at Greenfield.

July 16-17: Ohio Hills Folk Festival concludes at Quaker City.

July 16-17: Pottery Festival at Crooksville.

July 16: Rain date is July 17 for an Arts and Crafts show at Barbarton.

July 17: Daniel Majeske is violinist and James Judd is guest conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra at Blossom Music Center near Akron and Cleveland.

July 17: More than 200 antique and classic cars will be on display at Ohio Village adjacent to the Ohio Historical Society museum in Columbus.

July 18: Franklin County Fair at Hilliard.

July 18: Jackson County Fair opens at Wellston.

July 18-19: Doobie Brothers will be at Blossom Music Center, Akron-Cleveland.

July 19: Carroll County Fair opens at Carrollton.

July 20-21: James Taylor scheduled at Blossom Music Center.

July 20: Warren County fair opens at Lebanon.

July 22-24: Outdoor Arts Festival, Willoughby.

July 22: Sheep Day at Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, Wooster.

July 22: Klaus Tennstedt conducts Cleveland Orchestra; pianist Malcolm Frager and members of the orchestra demonstrate cadenzas written for their instruments at Blossom Music Center.

July 23: Clark County Fair opens at Springfield.

July 23: Antique and Classic car parade at Hamilton.

July 23: Klaus Tennstedt conducts Cleveland Orchestra with guest Leonard Rose, cellist.

DINNER FOR TWO

Lamb chops, honey squash, green peas, tomato salad, cheese and crackers.

Honey Squash

1 1/4-pound (about) acorn squash
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons honey
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
Rinse squash; leave whole and unpeeled and cook in a countertop microwave oven, following manufacturer's directions, until tender. Cut in half and remove seeds, fibers and skin. Mash squash with remaining ingredients. Reheat in a small glass or pottery casserole, covered, in the microwave oven. Makes 2 or 3 servings.

To stretch guacamole—that delicious mixture of mashed avocado, minced onion, lemon or lime juice and salt—add minced green pepper and skinned and seeded diced tomato.

Kurfess Holding Bag On Bill Dear Abby:

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — House Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, who hints a possible challenge of GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes in the 1978 primary, has apparently convinced Rhodes, at least, that he is serious.

Kurfess came under predictable scorn from majority Democrats in the House when his troops torpedoed a "lifeline" utility bill subsidy measure for the elderly and handicapped. The minority leader didn't engineer the move, he said, and several GOP lawmakers attested to the claim.

But the 67-year-old governor issued an immediate press release in which he lamented the bill's defeat and said he hoped Democrats and Republicans would "resolve their differences" and pass the bill. Rhodes didn't get into the stated GOP claims that the bill might be fiscally irresponsible. He simply called for its passage.

That left Kurfess out front to counter Democratic charges that Republicans were indifferent to the needs of the elderly and disabled. That, of course, is the way Rhodes wants it, with a possible but unlikely fight on his hands for a fourth term nomination next year.

Rhodes has not said officially he will run again, but the popular governor can keep others guessing almost until March 1978, the filing deadline. The longer he waits, the better his chances of anointing a successor. Rhodes believes he deserves that option.

Kurfess, unlike a long list of other potential candidates, has gone ahead full steam with his plans, to the point of opening a Columbus office and deploying some staff.

To cover his political flanks on the "lifeline" measure, he held an unusual "background" briefing with newsmen to explain his position.

He said he favored the concept but had asked GOP members not to agree to a reconsideration vote unless Democrats agreed to temporarily refer the bill to the Finance Committee and give a hearing to a Republican-sponsored lifeline proposal.

It's no secret that politicians generally do not write their own speeches, statements or correspondence, but many would like the public to believe that they do.

Gov. Rhodes dropped any pretense on that score recently, after learning that Ohio would get a federal uranium enrichment project in Piketon.

"That's great, that's wonderful," he said on getting the word from a reporter.

Later, he said he was sending President Carter a telegram of thanks.

"What does it say?" he was immediately asked. "I don't know I haven't read it yet," he replied.

A few moments later, an aide, Chan Cochran, came into the cabinet office with copies of the telegram.

"Read it Chan, you wrote it," Rhodes told him with a smile. Cochran read the telegram.

People's Faith Chapel Elects Officers

People's Faith Chapel, Route 56 East, conducted its biennial business meeting and election of officers July 6. The Rev. John DeMint served as chairman.

As founding pastor, the Rev. DeMint has an extended call. Church officials elected to office were:

Paul Kazee, David Bell, David Schlichter, Clifford Wine, trustees; Caroline Edwards, secretary; Ellen England, treasurer; Regina Seitz, assistant treasurer; Earl Seitz, vice chairman; John Magill, missionary president; Bea Stevenson, missionary treasurer; Violet Dollison, song leader; Dawn Cottrell, assistant song leader; Debbie Palmer, pianist; Julia Stevens, assistant pianist;

Caroline Edwards, church custodian; Donna Kazee, benevolent and flower fund treasurer; Steven Palmer, youth president; Dawn Cottrell, choir leader; Florence Clark, church reporter; John Rugg, Sunday School superintendent; Daniel Cottrell, assistant superintendent; Joellen Schlichter, Sunday School secretary; Glenna Schlichter, Sunday School treasurer.

ORDINANCE NO. 21-77
AN ORDINANCE TO PROVIDE FOR THE ISSUANCE OF A NOTE IN ANTICIPATION OF THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS FOR THE PURPOSE OF PAYING COSTS OF CONSTRUCTING A MUNICIPAL SEWAGE COLLECTION AND TREATMENT SYSTEM, TOGETHER WITH ALL NECESSARY APPROPRIATIONS THEREFOR, AND DECLARING AN EMERGENCY.

WHEREAS, pursuant to Ordinance No. 9-75, passed April 7, 1975, a note in the principal amount of $25,000, dated July 21, 1975, was issued for the purpose hereinafter stated, maturing on or before one year from the date which note was renewed pursuant to Ordinance No. 14-76 passed July 5, 1976, which authorized the issuance and sale of a note in the principal amount of $25,000, dated July 21, 1976, for the purpose hereinafter stated, maturing on or before July 21, 1977, and it appears advisable in lieu of issuing bonds at this time to issue a new note in anticipation of the issuance of such bonds; and

WHEREAS, the Clerk-Treasurer as fiscal officer has certified to this Council that the estimated life of the improvement hereinafter mentioned is at least five (5) years, and that the maximum maturity of the bonds hereinafter referred to is forty (40) years, and the maximum maturity of the note hereinafter referred to, to be issued in anticipation of said bonds is July 21, 1983, if sold publicly, or one (1) year if sold privately;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED by the Council of the Village of Williamsport, Pickaway County, State of Ohio:

Section 1. That it is hereby declared necessary to issue bonds of the Village of Williamsport in the principal sum of $25,000 for the purpose of paying costs of constructing a municipal sewage collection and treatment system, together with all necessary appurtenances thereto.

Section 2. That such bonds shall be dated approximately July 1, 1978, shall bear interest at the estimated rate of six and one-half per centum (6 1/2%) per annum, payable semi-annually, until the principal sum is paid, and shall mature in twenty-five (25) substantially equal annual installments after their issuance.

Section 3. That it is necessary to issue and this Council hereby determines that a note in the principal amount of $25,000 shall be issued in anticipation of such bonds and to retire said outstanding note dated July 21, 1976. Such anticipatory note shall bear interest at the rate of four per centum (4 per cent) per annum, such interest to be payable at maturity. Such note shall be dated July 21, 1976, and shall mature on or before July 21, 1978.

Section 4. That such note shall be executed by the Mayor and Clerk-Treasurer and bear the seal of the corporation. It shall be payable at the office of The First National Bank of Circleville, Williamsport Branch, Williamsport, Ohio, and shall express upon its face the purpose for which it is issued and that it is issued pursuant to this ordinance.

Section 5. That subject to the rejection of such note by the officer in charge of the Bond Retirement Fund for investment in such fund, such note shall be and hereby is awarded and sold to The First National Bank, Circleville, Ohio, at the par value thereof together with any premium and accrued interest thereon, and the Clerk-Treasurer is hereby authorized and directed to deliver such note, when executed, to such purchaser upon payment of such purchase price. The proceeds from the sale of such note, except any premium and accrued interest shall be paid into the proper fund and used for the purpose for which such note is being issued under the provisions of this ordinance. Any premium and accrued interest received from such sale shall be applied to the Bond Retirement Fund to be applied to the payment of the principal and interest of such note in the manner provided by law.

Section 6. That the Village of Williamsport hereby covenants that it will restrict the use of the proceeds of the note in such manner and to such extent if any, as may be necessary, after taking into account reasonable expectations at the time the debt is incurred, so that the note will not constitute arbitrage bonds under Section 103(c) of the Internal Revenue Code and the regulations prescribed under that section. The fiscal officer or any other officer, including the Clerk, having responsibility with respect to the issuance of this note is authorized and directed to give an appropriate certificate on behalf of the Village, for inclusion in the transcript of proceedings, setting forth the facts, estimates and circumstances and reasonable expectations pertaining to said Section 103(c) and regulations thereunder.

Section 7. That such note shall be the full general obligation of this municipality and the full faith, credit and revenue of this municipality are hereby pledged for the prompt payment of the same. The par value to be received from the sale of the bonds anticipated by such note and any excess funds resulting from the issuance of such note shall, to the extent necessary, be used for the retirement of such note at maturity together with interest thereon, and are hereby pledged for such purpose.

Section 8. That during the term while such note runs there shall be levied on all the taxable property in this municipality, in addition to all other taxes, a direct tax amount not less than that which would have been levied if bonds had been issued without the prior issue of such note. Said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified, levied and extended upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers, in the same manner, and at the same time that taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected. Said tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof. The funds derived from such tax levies hereby required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which together with the interest collected on the same shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the principal and interest of such note or bonds in anticipation of which it is issued, when and as the same fall due; provided, however, that in each year to the extent that surplus revenues from the sewerage system are available for the payment of such note and bonds and are appropriated for such purpose, the amount of such tax shall be reduced by the amount of such revenue so available and appropriated.

Section 9. That it is hereby determined that all acts, conditions and things required to be done precedent to and in the issuance of such note, in order to make it a legal, valid and binding obligation of this municipality, have happened, been done and performed in regular and due form as required by law; that no limitation of indebtedness or taxation, either statutory or constitutional, will have been exceeded in the issuance of such note, in order to make it a legal, valid and binding obligation of this municipality, have happened, been done and performed in regular and due form as required by law; that no limitation of indebtedness or taxation, either statutory or constitutional, will have been exceeded in the issuance of such note.

Section 10. That the Clerk of this Council is hereby directed to forward a certified copy of this ordinance to the County Auditor.

Section 11. That it is found and determined that all formal actions of this Village concerning and relating to the adoption of this ordinance were adopted in an open meeting of this Council, and that all deliberations of this Council and of any of its committees that resulted in such formal action, were in meetings open to the public, in compliance with all legal requirements pertaining to Section 121.22 of the Ohio Revised Code.

Section 12. That this ordinance is hereby declared to be an emergency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety of this Village, and for the further reason that the immediate issuance and sale of the note herein authorized is necessary to provide funds to enable the Village to retire its outstanding indebtedness and thereby preserve its credit; wherefore, this ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and immediately after its passage.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Youth Confirms Abby's Statement

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked you if a 13-year-old boy could get a girl pregnant, and I'm glad you said yes because I am living proof of it.

Five months ago I got a 15-year-old girl pregnant. Her parents and mine raised a terrible fuss and sent threats back and forth. The girl finally got an abortion, and we aren't allowed to see each other again.

Might I add that my puberty started when I was 11.

THIRTEEN AND OLD ENOUGH

DEAR THIRTEEN: And might I add that you aren't the only 13-year-old boy who wrote to confirm that fact? I also heard from several girls stating that they had become pregnant at the age of 12. (Readers: If you find that shocking, consider this: In 1975, 12,642 babies were born in the U.S. to girls between the ages of 10 and 14.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a fourth grade teacher employed in a suburb of Minneapolis, Minn. During the past few years I have found that most of my students seem to appreciate physical contact.

In early December my building principal called me into his office and told me that a parent had called the superintendent and expressed concern that my actions were, if not morally improper, certainly "weird" and abnormal.

After my initial shock I asked who complained and what specifically was the nature of their complaint. I never was told who, but I was told that each of the following actions was cause for alarm:

1. I had allowed some of my students to occasionally sit on my lap.
 2. I had occasionally given a student a back rub.
 3. I had occasionally given a student a hug.
- For many months thereafter I have been continually impressed how a paranoid, bigoted, uninformed minority could make a life miserable and influence school politics.
- I deeply regret that an all too influential element of my community finds it impossible to accept a MALE teacher who is physically affectionate to his students but has no intention of sexual exploitation.
- How can I possibly continue to meet the human needs of my students when I am expected to respond like a cold-blooded computer?

DEAR CONFUSED: I fail to see what being male has to do with the criticism. I'm sure a female teacher would be criticized for giving her students back rubs, allowing them to sit on her lap and hugging them.

While your motives may have been beyond reproach, the kind of physical contact you engaged in might easily be mistaken for intimacy beyond acceptable limits. Kindergarten and possibly first graders, yes—but fourth graders, no.

Vets' Records May Be Expunged

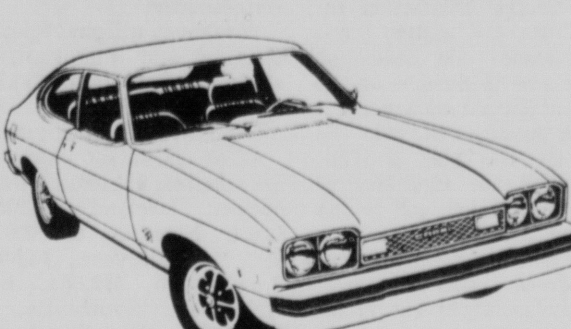

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Veterans' records with notations such as "bed wetter" or "homosexual tendencies" could be expunged under a bill nearing final approval in the legislature.

Rep. Terry M. Tranter, D-24 Cincinnati, the House sponsor, said the records with "spin numbers" that refer to long lists of personal characteristics currently are kept in offices of county recorders.

If the bill is enacted, a veteran could go to the recorder's office and demand the expungement of such information, which Tranter said in many instances represents "the rankest form of hearsay."

The House gave its approval 81-11, sending it back to the Senate for consideration of minor amendments.

Youth Confirms Abby's Statement

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked you if a 13-year-old boy could get a girl pregnant, and I'm glad you said yes because I am living proof of it.

Five months ago I got a 15-year-old girl pregnant. Her parents and mine raised a terrible fuss and sent threats back and forth. The girl finally got an abortion, and we aren't allowed to see each other again.

Might I add that my puberty started when I was 11.

THIRTEEN AND OLD ENOUGH
DEAR THIRTEEN: And might I add that you aren't the only 13-year-old boy who wrote to confirm that fact? I also heard from several girls stating that they had become pregnant at the age of 12. (Readers: If you find that shocking, consider this: In 1975, 12,642 babies were born in the U.S. to girls between the ages of 10 and 14.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a fourth grade teacher employed in a suburb of Minneapolis, Minn. During the past few years I have found that most of my students seem to appreciate physical contact.

In early December my building principal called me into his office and told me that a parent had called the superintendent and expressed concern that my actions were, if not morally improper, certainly "weird" and abnormal.

After my initial shock I asked who complained and what specifically was the nature of their complaint. I never was told who, but I was told that each of the following actions was cause for alarm:

1. I had allowed some of my students to occasionally sit on my lap.
2. I had occasionally given a student a back rub.
3. I had occasionally given a student a hug.

For many months thereafter I have been continually impressed how a paranoid, bigoted, uninformed minority could make a life miserable and influence school politics.

I deeply regret that an all too influential element of my community finds it impossible to accept a MALE teacher who is physically affectionate to his students but has no intention of sexual exploitation.

How can I possibly continue to meet the human needs of my students when I am expected to respond like a cold-blooded computer?

Vets' Records May Be Expunged

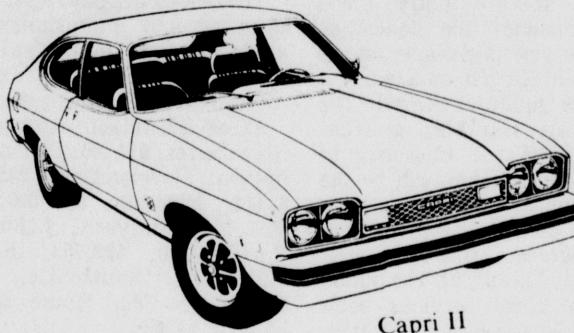

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Veterans' records with notations such as "bed wetter" or "homosexual tendencies" could be expunged under a bill nearing final approval in the legislature.

Rep. Terry M. Tranter, D-24 Cincinnati, the House sponsor, said the records with "spin numbers" that refer to long lists of personal characteristics currently are kept in offices of county recorders.

If the bill is enacted, a veteran could go to the recorder's office and demand the expungement of such information, which Tranter said in many instances represents "the rankest form of hearsay."

The House gave its approval 81-11, sending it back to the Senate for consideration of minor amendments.

Church Briefs

The sermon topic selected by the Rev. Dean Wolfe of the Church of The Brethren is "God Is Alive."

The Rev. Eugene Flowers will be the guest pastor at Calvary United Methodist Church Sunday. His sermon topic is: "Your Life—What Is It?"

Dr. Max R. Culver, professor at Capital University, Columbus, will be the guest minister at Trinity Lutheran Church Sunday.

The Rev. David F. Frazer has chosen for his sermon topic, "Heal The Tendency Toward Failure" Sunday at Community United Methodist Church.

Dr. Frank J. Irvine of First Presbyterian will deliver the sermon "Maintaining One's Faith" Sunday.

The Rev. Oscar Miles, pastor of the Logan Elm Baptist Church will preach both services Sunday. Services are held at the 4-H and Grange Building.

The South Central District of the Churches of Christ in Christian Union wishes to announce the dedication service of the new tabernacle on the campgrounds at Nipgen, on Sunday at 2:30 p.m. The public is invited. The Rev. Donovan Humble, general superintendent of the Churches of Christ in Christian Union, will be the speaker for this occasion.

The annual district camp meeting will be in progress at this time, with dates being July 15-July 24. The public is invited to these services each morning at 10:30 and evening at 7:30.

The guest evangelists are the Rev. Merrill Vaughn of Cincinnati, and the Rev. R. G. Flexon of Cincinnati, Ohio. Tim Rapp, Waverly, is the song evangelist. Everyone is cordially invited to these services.

Dean Wolfe, 21, currently a student at Miami University majoring in political science and religion, is serving as minister at the Church of the Brethren, corner of Pickaway and Logan Streets.

He is a licensed minister of the Church of the Brethren and will be in Circleville until the end of August when he will return to school to complete undergraduate work.

Slate Release Of Federal Grants

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency soon will distribute more than $14 million in federal grants to 15 Ohio communities.

The money will pay 75 per cent of the planning and improvement or construction of municipal sewage treatment facilities. Communities receiving the latest grants are:

Akron, $6 million; Aurora, $33,525; Blanchester, $17,100; Cincinnati, $3,96 million; Cleveland, $896,925; Dayton, $7,000; Eldorado, $826,800; Holgate, $201,450; Malvern, $2,38 million; Portsmouth, $99,664; Shadyside, $115,275; Smithville, $9,750; Washington Court House, $5,625; and Willard, $1,350.

Lima School Case Runs Into Snag

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — A dispute over disclosure of sources of information threatened today to halt Lima's school desegregation hearing indefinitely. Administrative law Judge John C. Castelli was to decide whether to suspend the hearing and send the dispute to Washington for resolution.

The dispute arose Thursday when a government witness refused to name sources of information. Patricia Wofford, an investigator for the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, refused to tell school attorney Frank Cory who gave her information about white students allegedly transferring from predominantly black Whittier elementary school to predominantly white Jefferson elementary in 1955.

Mrs. Wofford, who works out of the Cleveland Office for Civil Rights, a division of HEW, also defied an order by Castelli to name her sources. She refused on the advice of HEW attorney Jack Gould.

Following several conferences with the judge and telephone calls to Washington by HEW attorneys, Gould made a motion to appeal the issue to an HEW Reviewing Authority.

Castelli said he would rule today on the motion. If the matter is sent to the reviewing authority, it will cause a delay of undetermined length in the hearing.

The Reviewing Authority is made up of five HEW attorneys. Usually it hears administrative cases on appeal after a hearing judge has made his decision in a compliance case.

Von Braun Keeper Of Faith

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Wernher von Braun, the "father of the American space age" who died last month, was not only a front-line scientist but also the finder — and bearer — of a keen religious faith.

"Prayer," he once said, "is the most important work of man."

The German-trained physicist, who developed the rockets that carried the first Americans into space and to the moon, saw science as basically similar to religion.

Just as religion requires faith, he maintained that scientific inquiry also requires faith in orderly processes in the universe, an intelligibility that is the basis of everything science learns from it.

"The grandeur of the cosmos serves only to confirm my belief in the certainty of the Creator," he told a symposium in Philadelphia last fall on the essentials of a humane society.

"It is one thing to accept the natural order as a way of life, but the minute one asks why then again enters God and all His glory."

That "glory," he contended, stands behind the still largely unknown realities of existence and makes up the mostly still hidden full truth on which science is totally dependent for the gradual bits it learns.

"Science and religion are not antagonists," he said. "On the contrary, they are sisters. While science tries to learn more about the creation, religion tries to better understand the Creator."

To him, it was incongruous for a scientist, whose very work is dependent on intelligent design in nature, not to recognize the creative intelligence behind it.

He commented: "What strange rationale makes some physicists accept the inconceivable electron as real while refusing to accept the reality of God on the ground that they cannot conceive of Him?"

Von Braun gave little attention to religion in his native Germany, where he frequently was at odds with the Hitler regime and once went to jail temporarily although he developed the ominous V2 rockets used in the final stages of the war on Britain.

But his nominal Christianity became intense commitment after that experience and his coming to the United States where he became a citizen. He joined the Episcopal Church, as did his family.

"It was the first time I really understood that religion was not just a cathedral inherited from the past or a quick prayer at the last minute," he said. "Religion has to be backed up by discipline and effort."

Those qualities are essential to prayer, he said, noting that his own prayer life had advanced into a "new dimension."

Von Braun maintained that "religion, like science, is evolutionary, growing and changing in the light of further revelations from God." He saw religion as an indispensable partner of science.

"Neither science nor technology has a moral dimension," he said, adding that religion must "give us the moral and ethical guidance we so desperately need to protect us from that genie that science has allowed to escape from the bottle."

TRANQUILITY

Mrs. Baxter looks as if she doesn't have a care in the world. She is always perfectly groomed. Her house and her garden, with its beautiful flowers, are always just so.

She isn't trying to give a false impression; in fact, she would be horrified at the thought. But the truth is that things have not been all that easy for her. Her husband is a semi-invalid; their only son was killed in a tragic accident. She works in her husband's business three days a week, to help keep things going.

Where does she get her serenity? How has she had the courage to accept so much adversity with so much grace? A friend asked her one day, and she pointed to the tall, white steeple at the end of the street.

Many people have found their answer in the Church. Have you looked there?

"It is one thing to accept the natural order as a way of life, but the minute one asks why then again enters God and all His glory."

Von Braun gave little attention to religion in his native Germany, where he frequently was at odds with the Hitler regime and once went to jail temporarily although he developed the ominous V2 rockets used in the final stages of the war on Britain.

Von Braun maintained that "religion, like science, is evolutionary, growing and changing in the light of further revelations from God." He saw religion as an indispensable partner of science.

Humane Society Hears Reports

The Pickaway County Humane Society held its monthly meeting in the probate court room Wednesday. A progress report was heard from the Neutering Committee.
The committee reported that 14 applications were received. On the bases of need, 10 were approved. This makes a total of 30 applications to date. Of the original 16 approved, only 10 certificates were used.
The committee feels that more advertisement of the program will help. This program is mainly for those who could not otherwise afford to have their pets taken care of.
The June newsletter has been sent out. Anyone wishing a copy may call Jeanne Riegel, 474-3950.
A garage sale for the society will be Aug. 5 and 6 and members are urged to sign up for working hours. Anyone with objects to donate should contact a member of the committee. The club will also have a table at the sidewalk sale.
A speaker will be at the October meeting with more information in the September newsletter.
Dues are payable in September, at which time a raise will be implemented. Patron and associate memberships are available.
The next meeting will be 7:30 p.m. Aug. 19 in the probate court room.

bringing a more southerly flow of extremely hot and humid air into the state. Temperatures were expected in the 90s with only scattered relief from showers or thundershowers. By Saturday, a cool front will sweep some of this hot and humid air from the state, but conditions will remain rather warm through the weekend.
Field Operations — Most field activities will proceed without interruption. Evaporative losses were expected to exceed 30 hundredths of an inch today. Scattered wetting is possible. Field workers should be alert for signs of heat stress.
Harvesting and Combining Operations — Hay harvest and small grain combining will continue with a chance for rain delays. New cuts of hay will be subject to scattered wetting through curing and harvest.
Insects — Insect development will continue at a rapid pace due to the very warm temperatures. Fruit growers should be prepared for an earlier than normal arrival of codling moth and apple maggot in orchards. With an earlier arrival, more generations can also be expected.
Fungal Diseases — Hot and humid weather will activate and spread fungus type diseases. Anthracnose, bacterial spot, and downy mildew could be very harmful to vine crops like melons. Hazy skies will prolong the damp period during the early morning hours. This will help spread these diseases. Control measures should be taken before plants suffer irreversible damage.
Spraying — Spraying conditions will be acceptable. There will be chance for scattered wetting, but most sections will have a 6 to 12 hour rain free period. Surface winds will pick up during the afternoon, so early morning spraying would be best.

Standard Envelope Size Will Be Effective In April

"The new dimensional standard for envelopes and post cards will become effective April 15, 1978," Postmaster Gene L. Scott said. The standardization of envelopes was adopted June 1976. A two year lead time was allowed to permit envelope manufacturers and postal customers to use non-standard envelope stock on hand.
Envelopes and cards measuring less than 3½ inches high and 5 inches long will no longer be mailable. Thin manifold computer forms mailed without a covering envelope must be .007 of an inch thick. By comparison the thickness of an official U.S. Post Card is .009 of an inch thick.
Oversize envelopes and cards measuring more than 6½ inches high or more than 11½ inches long which weigh less than one ounce will be subject to a surcharge. Because large firstclass envelopes (9" x 12") usually weigh more than one ounce, rarely will these items be subject to the surcharge. "The exact amount of the surcharge has not been determined, but five to eight cents per item has been considered," Mr. Scott said.

Oversize envelopes mailed at the third-class rate weighing less than two ounces will be subject to the surcharge. Third class which is ZIP presorted and bundled prior to mailing will not be subject to the surcharge.
In addition to the minimum size of mail items, another factor is that of "aspect ratio." Because it is more economical for the Postal Service to handle mail of conventional size, the classification calls for height to length ratios which fall between 1 to 1.3 and 1 to 2.5. A nearly square envelope, for instance, is cumbersome and baffles the mail machines designed to place envelopes in address reading position for sorting. Square or near square envelopes have four possible bottom and top edges.

Scott recommends that whenever possible correspondence be folded and placed in a letter-size envelope for machine sorting. Large and intermediate size envelopes — those over 6½ inches high or 11½ inches long and items more than ¼ inch thick — must be sorted manually piece-by-piece. They do not flow as freely or rapidly through the distribution system at Columbus or other post offices.
Scott said, "Mail must be addressed parallel to the length of the envelope." The city, state and ZIP Code should be on one line at least ½ inches above the bottom edge of the envelope. The bottom edge of the envelope rides in a transport track and any information near the bottom edge of the envelope is hidden from the sorter's view. Un-ZIPped mail is rejected from the system. This causes four to six hours delay in distribution at Columbus and other redistribution centers. Un-

ZIPed letters are excluded from postal delivery standards. It takes at least 24 hours longer to handle and deliver un-ZIPped mail.

Car Damaged By Blaze

The Clearcreek Twp. Fire Department extinguished a car blaze 10:30 p.m. Thursday on Griest Road, a half mile north of Route 22.
Paul R. Knece, 609 Elm Ave., and his wife, Rita, escaped from the burning car without injury.
Knece, bailiff of the Circleville Municipal Court, told Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Bill Carmean that he was driving south on Griest road when he noticed flames shooting out from under the hood of the car.
Clearcreek Fire official say a fuel line may have ruptured.
Knece's 1968 Oldsmobile was damaged severely.

On Books And Activities At The Library

Religion, science and education may sound like dull, heavy subjects for summertime reading. Not so. We have several new titles in these areas that may be just the answer to help keep your mind off the heat.

Marjorie Holmes has a way of putting God into daily lives. "Hold Me Up A Little Longer, Lord" is a collection of prose-poems which find the joy that shines through the frustrations of ordinary life.

Dr. Billy Graham uses his direct and dynamic approach in "How To Be Born Again." Man has a problem and God has an answer. Dr. Graham's new book is a primer for finding salvation as well as a guidebook for continuing growth. For 5 centuries, "The Imitation Of Christ" by Thomas a Kempis has been acclaimed as one of the greatest spiritual writings of all times. Now Harold C. Gardiner, S.J. has given readers a modern version of this spiritual classic.

A new way to study theology and church history is presented in "Case Studies In Christ And Salvation" by Jack Rogers. This would be a valuable book for the reader involved in class discussions on religious subjects.

Get away from the heat via a trip to the moon! "New Guide To The Moon" by Patrick Moore is a lively description for those who would travel there by telescope, spaceship or imagination.

"The Cosmic Frontiers Of General Relativity" by William Kaufmann is a clear, non-technical layman's guide to the recent discoveries that have reshaped our thinking about the universe.

If you're interested in telescopes, look for "Telescopes For Stargazing" by Dr. Henry E. Paul.

Whether you're a parent concerned about your child's education or an American concerned with the future, two new titles should provide food for thought. "Does Anybody Give A Damn" by Nat Hentoff discusses some non-failure systems. "Between Parent And School" by Dr. Murray Kappelman is a handbook for all parents who want to be "insiders" when it comes to dealing with their child's school.

For the parents of the hyperactive

child, a medically-oriented cookbook containing 400 recipes is titled "How To Feed Your Hyperactive Child" by Laura J. Stevens.

The chicken growing, egg laying, feather plucking, incubating, caponizing, finger licking handbook is the sub-title of "Backyard Poultry Raising" by John Adams. Need we say more? It's not only an informative little book but also a readable fun adventure.

"Training Your Retriever" by James Free is a useful handbook for any gunner of upland game thinking of buying and training his own dog.

If you're interested in draft horses, "The Draft Horse Primer" by Maurice Telleen is a guide to the care and use of work horses and mules.

"Dolphins, Whales And Porpoises" by David Coffey is an encyclopedia of sea mammals both beautiful to browse and interesting to read.

"Plants-a-Plenty" by Catharine Foster is for the enthusiasts who like to propagate their own plants.

You can start planning next year's garden now with the Woman's Day Book of "Annuals And Perennials" by Jean Hersey.

GREAT is the word for "Good Housekeeping New Complete Book Of Needlecraft" by Vera Guild. If it's just macrame for you, the Little Craft Series book "Macrame" by Imelda Pesch is well done.

For the absolute beginner in oil painting, "More Instant Painting" by Nancy Kominsky is a worthwhile step-by-step guide.

A new "Motor Truck Repair Manual" and "Metalworking Handbook" by J.T. Adams should appeal to the mechanically-minded.

For the business-minded, "Stock Market Strategy" by Richard Crowell and "The Crafts Business Encyclopedia" by Michael Scott offer good information.

An interesting little book paints a different picture of the flapper era. "Another Part Of The Twenties" by Paul A. Carter presents a more serious side of that period.

For the romantics, two new Barbara Cartland titles in hardback make up the new fiction this week.

FCC Chief Sees Good Future For CB Users

Editors: Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission since March 1974, Richard E. Wiley is ending a five-year term on the commission, during which he played a key role in overseeing the phenomenal CB explosion.

By RICHARD E. WILEY
Written for the AP

WASHINGTON (AP) — People like to talk to other people — almost any time, about almost anything.

At the FCC, we think this is an important reason why CB radio is so popular today and why it will continue to be popular in the future. Every day, thousands of people join the millions of licensed CBers, discovering a world of enjoyable conversations and learning about the very important public service contributions of CB radio.

The CB Radio Service is your radio service. You do not need any technical training to operate a CB radio. You do not have to take any exams to become licensed in the CB radio service. Almost anyone can get a CB license, and the temporary permit allows an applicant to get on the air immediately after he has filed a license application. The rules governing CB radio are minimal, and most of them are intended to make your communications easier and more enjoyable.

You can use CB radio for almost all of your personal or business communications needs. We know that families often use CB radio to keep communications open between their houses and their automobiles. Small businesses often use hand-held CB units to communicate among employees within an office building. Boats, especially small pleasure craft, are frequently equipped with CB radios to stay in contact with shore-based units in case of emergency.

Certainly, CB radio is not without its difficulties. It seems that television interference, or TVI, is a problem that will not go away. We know some interference is caused by faulty home entertainment equipment and we are encouraging manufacturers to install proper filters.

We also know that a good deal of TVI is caused by CBers operating with illegal power, and we are dedicating a substantial proportion of our enforcement efforts to fighting the use of linear amplifiers at CB stations.

"Skip" is another problem we are concerned about, especially as we approach the peak of the solar cycle, which is due in 1980. FCC rules prohibit you from deliberately "working skip" because skip can cause interference to other CB stations. But we know that unwanted distant signals will sometimes show up on your radio. While the FCC is studying this problem very carefully, the solution will not be an easy one to find.

For all of its problems, CB radio is an important component of our society's communications system. We firmly believe that CB radio makes valuable public service contributions every day. Highway monitoring patrols, for instance, have assisted many stranded motorists, reported countless accidents and helped homeward-bound travelers avoid sticky rush-hour traffic tie-ups. It certainly is nice to know that help, if you should need it, is only as far away as your CB microphone.

There is a nationwide effort to coordinate motorist calls on CB radio for emergency assistance. It is known as National Emergency Aid Radio — NEAR — and it is now being tested in several states. The program, which is being developed state by state, is sponsored by the Department of Transportation.

OU-L Offers Educational Sociology Course

A workshop in Sociology of Education, will be offered at Ohio University-Lancaster Campus beginning July 25, ending Aug. 5. The class will meet Monday through Fridays from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., with Dr. Ronald Zishka as the instructor.

The course will deal with the school as a social institution in relation to community and the development of the child; comparative systems of education; sociology of learning and teaching.

Discussion will be held on current issues in the school system such as; the school as a power system, student testing and the use of these tests, educational alternatives in modern society, content and goals of textbooks, moral education pro and con, and the importance of self image in relation to educational success.

Enrollment in this workshop can be made at Ohio University-Lancaster Campus, Registrars Office.

Man Convicted In Slaying Case

YOUNGSTOWN (AP)—A Mahoning County Common Pleas Court jury found Esteban "Chico" Aviles guilty of aggravated murder Wednesday for the October shooting death of his former girlfriend Helen Anderson.

A court spokesman said the verdict was returned with specifications that could mean the death penalty for the 44-year-old Youngstown man because he was convicted in 1955 of second degree murder for shooting another sergeant while serving as a sergeant in the U.S. Army.

The spokesman said Aviles has been in and out of mental institutions since 1955 and that sentencing would follow psychiatric examination.

The goal of NEAR is to coordinate emergency aid teams, including CB volunteer monitors, Red Cross staffs, state and local police and medical personnel so that a CB-equipped motorist, anywhere in the United States, could always reach assistance in case of emergency.

Some communities have set up "citizen watch" programs, in which volunteer participants who happen to see a crime in progress can report its details to a volunteer monitor on CB Channel 9. Monitors immediately relay the report to the police.

The volunteers are trained to note license numbers and facial characteristics. They are also reminded regularly to keep away from the scene of the crime. One "citizen watch" program has been established in Washington, D.C., and we believe that it is making a substantial contribution to the community.

The CB Radio Service is your radio service, and CB radio is what you make it.

To be an active supporter of a good CB service:

1. Follow the CB rules. They are intended to make your radio service better. If you follow the operating rules while you are "on the air," your good example will encourage others to operate legally.

2. Support CB operator training programs in your communities. If new CB operators are trained in good operating practices, they will help to improve your radio service when they begin to use their equipment.

3. Let the FCC know what you are thinking. When we propose changes in the CB rules, send us your opinions. If you have ideas about rules which should be changed or added, we like to hear about that, too.

At the FCC we will try to keep the CB rules simple. Whenever we can, we will make the CB rules clearer and more understandable. Indeed, the commission has already published, through the Government Printing Office, a separate booklet covering only the CB licensing and operating rules. This booklet is smaller and less expensive than the former edition.

We are also preparing informational and educational materials on many aspects of CB radio, material which is available for your use in training classes, at club meetings or for your own information. We are working on a "plain English" rewrite of the CB rules, so you will be able to understand all of the CB regulations, including some of the more complex operating rules. Perhaps most importantly, we are listening to you. As indicated, we want to hear your comments, thoughts, suggestions and criticisms. We want to know how we can better serve you and the cause of good radio communications.

If we work together, we can make CB radio even better than it is today.

On Books And Activities At The Library

Religion, science and education may sound like dull, heavy subjects for summertime reading. Not so. We have several new titles in these areas that may be just the answer to help keep your mind off the heat.

Marjorie Holmes has a way of putting God into daily lives. "Hold Me Up A Little Longer, Lord" is a collection of prose-poems which find the joy that shines through the frustrations of ordinary life.

Dr. Billy Graham uses his direct and dynamic approach in "How To Be Born Again." Man has a problem and God has an answer. Dr. Graham's new book is a primer for finding salvation as well as a guidebook for continuing growth. For 5 centuries, "The Imitation Of Christ" by Thomas a Kempis has been acclaimed as one of the greatest spiritual writings of all times. Now Harold C. Gardiner, S.J. has given readers a modern version of this spiritual classic.

A new way to study theology and church history is presented in "Case Studies In Christ And Salvation" by Jack Rogers. This would be a valuable book for the reader involved in class discussions on religious subjects.

Get away from the heat via a trip to the moon! "New Guide To The Moon" by Patrick Moore is a lively description for those who would travel there by telescope, spaceship or imagination.

"The Cosmic Frontiers Of General Relativity" by William Kaufmann is a clear, non-technical layman's guide to the recent discoveries that have reshaped our thinking about the universe.

If you're interested in telescopes, look for "Telescopes For Stargazing" by Dr. Henry E. Paul.

Whether you're a parent concerned about your child's education or an American concerned with the future, two new titles should provide food for thought. "Does Anybody Give A Damn" by Nat Hentoff discusses some non-failure systems. "Between Parent And School" by Dr. Murray Kappelman is a handbook for all parents who want to be "insiders" when it comes to dealing with their child's school.

For the parents of the hyperactive

child, a medically-oriented cookbook containing 400 recipes is titled "How To Feed Your Hyperactive Child" by Laura J. Stevens.

The chicken growing, egg laying, feather plucking, incubating, caponizing, finger licking handbook is the sub-title of "Backyard Poultry Raising" by John Adams. Need we say more? It's not only an informative little book but also a readable fun adventure.

"Training Your Retriever" by James Free is a useful handbook for any gunner of upland game thinking of buying and training his own dog.

If you're interested in draft horses, "The Draft Horse Primer" by Maurice Telleen is a guide to the care and use of work horses and mules.

"Dolphins, Whales And Porpoises" by David Coffey is an encyclopedia of sea mammals both beautiful to browse and interesting to read.

"Plants-a-Plenty" by Catharine Foster is for the enthusiasts who like to propagate their own plants.

You can start planning next year's garden now with the Woman's Day Book of "Annals And Perennials" by Jean Hersey.

GREAT is the word for "Good Housekeeping New Complete Book Of Needlecraft" by Vera Guild. If it's just macrame for you, the Little Craft Series book "Macrame" by Imelda Pesch is well done.

For the absolute beginner in oil painting, "More Instant Painting" by Nancy Kominsky is a worthwhile step-by-step guide.

A new "Motor Truck Repair Manual" and "Metalworking Handbook" by J.T. Adams should appeal to the mechanically-minded.

For the business-minded, "Stock Market Strategy" by Richard Crowell and "The Crafts Business Encyclopedia" by Michael Scott offer good information.

An interesting little book paints a different picture of the flapper era. "Another Part Of The Twenties" by Paul A. Carter presents a more serious side of that period.

For the romantics, two new Barbara Cartland titles in hardback make up the new fiction this week.

FCC Chief Sees Good Future For CB Users

Editors: Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission since March 1974, Richard E. Wiley is ending a five-year term on the commission, during which he played a key role in overseeing the phenomenal CB explosion.

By RICHARD E. WILEY
Written for the AP

WASHINGTON (AP) — People like to talk to other people — almost any time, about almost anything.

At the FCC, we think this is an important reason why CB radio is so popular today and why it will continue to be popular in the future. Every day, thousands of people join the millions of licensed CBers, discovering a world of enjoyable conversations and learning about the very important public service contributions of CB radio.

The CB Radio Service is your radio service. You do not need any technical training to operate a CB radio. You do not have to take any exams to become licensed in the CB radio service. Almost anyone can get a CB license, and the temporary permit allows an applicant to get on the air immediately after he has filed a license application. The rules governing CB radio are minimal, and most of them are intended to make your communications easier and more enjoyable.

You can use CB radio for almost all of your personal or business communications needs. We know that families often use CB radio to keep communications open between their houses and their automobiles. Small businesses often use hand-held CB units to communicate among employees within an office building. Boats, especially small pleasure craft, are frequently equipped with CB radios to stay in contact with shore-based units in case of emergency.

Certainly, CB radio is not without its difficulties. It seems that television interference, or TVI, is a problem that will not go away. We know some interference is caused by faulty home entertainment equipment and we are encouraging manufacturers to install proper filters.

We also know that a good deal of TVI is caused by CBers operating with illegal power, and we are dedicating a substantial proportion of our enforcement efforts to fighting the use of linear amplifiers at CB stations.

"Skip" is another problem we are concerned about, especially as we approach the peak of the solar cycle, which is due in 1980. FCC rules prohibit you from deliberately "working skip" because skip can cause interference to other CB stations. But we know that unwanted distant signals will sometimes show up on your radio. While the FCC is studying this problem very carefully, the solution will not be an easy one to find.

For all of its problems, CB radio is an important component of our society's communications system. We firmly believe that CB radio makes valuable public service contributions every day. Highway monitoring patrols, for instance, have assisted many stranded motorists, reported countless accidents and helped homeward-bound travelers avoid sticky rush-hour traffic tie-ups. It certainly is nice to know that help, if you should need it, is only as far away as your CB microphone.

There is a nationwide effort to coordinate motorist calls on CB radio for emergency assistance. It is known as National Emergency Aid Radio — NEAR — and it is now being tested in several states. The program, which is being developed state by state, is sponsored by the Department of Transportation.

OU-L Offers Educational Sociology Course

A workshop in Sociology of Education, will be offered at Ohio University-Lancaster Campus beginning July 25, ending Aug. 5. The class will meet Monday through Fridays from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., with Dr. Ronald Zishka as the instructor.

The course will deal with the school as a social institution in relation to community and the development of the child; comparative systems of education; sociology of learning and teaching.

Discussion will be held on current issues in the school system such as; the school as a power system, student testing and the use of these tests, educational alternatives in modern society, content and goals of textbooks, moral education pro and con, and the importance of self image in relation to educational success.

Enrollment in this workshop can be made at Ohio University-Lancaster Campus, Registrars Office.

Man Convicted In Slaying Case

YOUNGSTOWN (AP)—A Mahoning County Common Pleas Court jury found Esteban "Chico" Aviles guilty of aggravated murder Wednesday for the October shooting death of his former girlfriend Helen Anderson.

A court spokesman said the verdict was returned with specifications that could mean the death penalty for the 44-year-old Youngstown man because he was convicted in 1955 of second degree murder for shooting another sergeant while serving as a sergeant in the U.S. Army.

The spokesman said Aviles has been in and out of mental institutions since 1955 and that sentencing would follow psychiatric examination.

The goal of NEAR is to coordinate emergency aid teams, including CB volunteer monitors, Red Cross staffs, state and local police and medical personnel so that a CB-equipped motorist, anywhere in the United States, could always reach assistance in case of emergency.

Some communities have set up "citizen watch" programs, in which volunteer participants who happen to see a crime in progress can report its details to a volunteer monitor on CB Channel 9. Monitors immediately relay the report to the police.

The volunteers are trained to note license numbers and facial characteristics. They are also reminded regularly to keep away from the scene of the crime. One "citizen watch" program has been established in Washington, D.C., and we believe that it is making a substantial contribution to the community.

The CB Radio Service is your radio service, and CB radio is what you make it.

To be an active supporter of a good CB service:

1. Follow the CB rules. They are intended to make your radio service better. If you follow the operating rules while you are "on the air," your good example will encourage others to operate legally.

2. Support CB operator training programs in your communities. If new CB operators are trained in good operating practices, they will help to improve your radio service when they begin to use their equipment.

3. Let the FCC know what you are thinking. When we propose changes in the CB rules, send us your opinions. If you have ideas about rules which should be changed or added, we like to hear about that, too.

At the FCC we will try to keep the CB rules simple. Whenever we can, we will make the CB rules clearer and more understandable. Indeed, the commission has already published, through the Government Printing Office, a separate booklet covering only the CB licensing and operating rules. This booklet is smaller and less expensive than the former edition.

We are also preparing informational and educational materials on many aspects of CB radio, material which is available for your use in training classes, at club meetings or for your own information. We are working on a "plain English" rewrite of the CB rules, so you will be able to understand all of the CB regulations, including some of the more complex operating rules. Perhaps most importantly, we want to hear your comments, thoughts, suggestions and criticisms. We want to know how we can better serve you and the cause of good radio communications.

If we work together, we can make CB radio even better than it is today.

Willie's Dillies

By A BENCHWARMER

With vacations coming up fast, a lot of people might find some spare time on their hands in the next few weeks.

If you're a football fan, we've got just the remedy for you. (Yes Virginia, football season will be here before you know it.) Pack the family in the car some morning or afternoon, make the hour long drive to Wilmington and catch the Cincinnati Bengals in a pre season workout.

The Bengals work out at the Wilmington College athletic field. The field is located towards the rear of the campus, which sits to the left of U.S. 22 as you enter Wilmington. You can't miss it.

During the two-a-day drills, the squad goes through exercises, reaction drills, and individual position practice. The receivers and quarterbacks work on the passing game, the defensive backs practice coverages, and the kicking specialists work out too. So there is really something for everyone to watch, no matter what your favorite phase of the game is.

The great thing is that the spectators can roam freely, as long as they don't enter the actual practice field that the teams are on. A thin nylon rope separates the spectators from the sweating straining athletes on the field.

Training camp for the rookies begins this Tuesday at Spinney Field in Cincinnati. The official start of camp is set for a week from today. The squad will work out starting at 9:30 in the morning and 3 p.m. in the afternoon session. There is no charge.

This could be the Bengals' year. In spite of a co-championship of the AFC Central Division, the Bengals lost a spot in the play-offs because of their two regular season losses to AFC co-champ Pittsburgh. With a year of experience for the younger men, an excellent draft in the off season, and some of the seasoned veterans returning, the Bengals' roar might be heard all the way to Pittsburgh — (maybe Oakland too?)

With all the beauty at Riviera Country Club in Columbus this week, it is really hard to pick a winner — but the best golfer in the Borden LPGA Classic will be Judy Rankin.

Until next time, have a nice day, be a good sport.

Favors for the day were from the First National Bank, American Cancer Society and Phillip Morris, Inc.

Valley Vista To Hold Trainers' Clinic

The Valley Vista Sports Camp at Bainbridge is sponsoring a weekend clinic for students trainers starting at 6 p.m. today and running until 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

Area trainers and-or coaches are invited to stop in at any of the sessions. Greg Evans, assistant athletic trainer at Ohio State University, and Dr. John Leach, an orthopedic surgeon from Columbus, will be the principle instructors at the clinic.

For further information, contact the Valley Vista Sports Camp at 634-2233.

Road Trip Costly For George Foster

CINCINNATI (AP) — The longest road trip of the season turned out to be an expensive one for Cincinnati Reds slugging star George Foster.

Thieves stole $500 worth of personal belongings from his downtown apartment, Foster said. He said the items included two radios, clothing and traveling gear.

Willie's Dillies

By A BENCHWARMER

With vacations coming up fast, a lot of people might find some spare time on their hands in the next few weeks.

If you're a football fan, we've got just the remedy for you. (Yes Virginia, football season will be here before you know it.) Pack the family in the car some morning or afternoon, make the hour long drive to Wilmington and catch the Cincinnati Bengals in a pre season workout.

The Bengals work out at the Wilmington College athletic field. The field is located towards the rear of the campus, which sits to the left of U.S. 22 as you enter Wilmington. You can't miss it.

During the two-a-day drills, the squad goes through exercises, reaction drills, and individual position practice. The receivers and quarterbacks work on the passing game, the defensive backs practice coverages, and the kicking specialists work out too. So there is really something for everyone to watch, no matter what your favorite phase of the game is.

The great thing is that the spectators can roam freely, as long as they don't enter the actual practice field that the teams are on. A thin nylon rope separates the spectators from the sweating straining athletes on the field.

Training camp for the rookies begins this Tuesday at Spinney Field in Cincinnati. The official start of camp is set for a week from today. The squad will work out starting at 9:30 in the morning and 3 p.m. in the afternoon session. There is no charge.

This could be the Bengals' year. In spite of a co-championship of the AFC Central Division, the Bengals lost a spot in the play-offs because of their two regular season losses to AFC co-champ Pittsburgh. With a year of experience for the younger men, an excellent draft in the off season, and some of the seasoned veterans returning, the Bengals' roar might be heard all the way to Pittsburgh — (maybe Oakland too?)

With all the beauty at Riviera Country Club in Columbus this week, it is really hard to pick a winner — but the best golfer in the Borden LPGA Classic will be Judy Rankin.

Until next time, have a nice day, be a good sport.

Riverfront Chosen

For Cage Tourney

CINCINNATI (AP) — Riverfront Coliseum has been awarded the 1979 NCAA Midwest Regionals, giving Cincinnati its first ever bigtime college basketball tournament.

The confirmation was made Thursday night by officials of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and confirmed by Bill Jenike, University of Cincinnati's recently named athletic director.

Cincinnati outbid 15 or 20 other cities to land the four-team tournament which will be held March 15-18 of 1979. The winner advances to the NCAA finals at Salt Lake City, Utah.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Flight Director streaked from third place into the lead in the stretch to record a narrow victory in the featured race at Scioto Downs Thursday night.

The winner, covering the mile in 2:02 2-5, returned $12.80, $3.60 and $3. Old Ganga Mine paid $2.40 and $2.40 for second and Chief Robin, $2.60 for show.

The 5-9 daily double combination of Culver Knight and Specie Key was worth $29.80. The 5-10-5 trifecta paid $5,179.20.

A crowd of 4,727 wagered $307,711.

Fred Marti Grabs Tournament Lead

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Fred Marti took a sober, realistic view of his surprise first-round lead, forged on a record 64, in the $250,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

"Rarely does the first round leader go on to win the tournament," said the veteran Marti, who has yet to win in 14 years of tour activity. "Very few manage to go from wire to wire, so it's hard to say how important the lead is."

But his seven-under-par effort, a tournament record that included a string of five consecutive birdies, some fantastic approach shots and a 29 — another tournament mark — on the back nine, kept alive what he has called "the great American dream."

"You never know. In the next three years I could win a half million dollars. So could a lot of other guys. The opportunity is there."

Jack Nicklaus agreed. "Fred's a good player. He should have won two or three tournaments,"

Nicklaus said. "You can't tell. He might win one and have a breakthrough, win a bunch of them."

Nicklaus and Tom Watson, though well back of Marti, resumed their duel that saw Watson win the British Open last week in one of golf's great confrontations. They matched 68s in the bright, hot sunshine, but both admitted to an emotional drain from the epic encounter in Turnberry, Scotland.

"I was playing on instinct," Watson said.

"It's always hard for me, the week after a major championship, for me to really get interested," Nicklaus said. "If I can just keep myself in position through the first couple of rounds, then the interest starts to build."

Sharing second, three shots back of Marti, were Ray Floyd and South African Dale Hayes, who had 67s on the 7,191-yard, par 71 Pleasant Valley Country Club course.

Seaver, Foster Lead Reds Past Braves, 7-1

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Tom Seaver is certainly the perfectionist. He isn't merely satisfied with a no-hitter—it has to be "arty."

"A no-hitter isn't necessarily anything," says the Cincinnati pitcher. "You can pitch a nohitter and give up 10 line drives. If I pitched an 'artful' no-hitter, that would be something."

It would be just like Seaver, then, to relish his performance Thursday night, even if it was "just" a two-hit, 7-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

"We needed a win today, and that was the important thing," said Seaver.

Along with Seaver's marvelous pitching performance, the Reds got some marvelous hitting from George Foster, who is on the hottest long-ball streak of his big league career.

Foster drove in five runs with three homers, taking over the National League home run leadership with 28 and padding his league-leading RBI total to 88.

"I thrive on pressure," said Foster, succinctly.

On his unusually high offensive totals, Foster remarked:

"I can't help but think about records. (But) I don't set specific goals for myself. Goals are good as far as setting guidelines for yourself, but if you think about them too much, you feel letdown if you don't accomplish them."

In limited National League action, the Houston Astros defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 and the St. Louis Cardinals tripped the Philadelphia Phillies 7-6 in 11 innings. The Chicago Cubs and New York Mets were postponed due to the after-effects of the massive power shortage that struck New York City Wednesday night.

Seaver, who also slugged a home run, walked the first two batters in the game and then retired 18 batters in a row. Willie Montanez hit a one-out double in the seventh inning to end Seaver's bid for his first career no-hitter. Foster became the 14th Reds' player ever to hit three home runs in a game.

Astros 4, Dodgers 3
A run-scoring double by Jose Cruz and RBI single by Joe Ferguson in the eighth inning broke up a duel between All-Star pitchers Joaquin Andujar of Houston and Don Sutton of Los Angeles and rallied the Astros over the Dodgers.

The Dodgers, who have lost five of their last six games, had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the eighth on a solo home run by Reggie Smith, his second of the game, before the Astros rallied.

Cardinals 7, Phillies 6
Pinch-hitter Hector Cruz smashed a run-scoring double in the 11th inning, then scored the winning run as St. Louis defeated Philadelphia.

Before the Cardinals rallied to tie the game with a threerun ninth and then win it in the 11th, the Phillies had taken a 5-2 lead on sixth-inning homers by Greg Luzinski, Richie Hebner and Bob Boone.

Edwards Inks Fat Contract With Bengals

CINCINNATI (AP) — Attorney Nick Buoniconti has announced he's "delighted with the deal" that his client Eddie Edwards made in signing with the Cincinnati Bengals.

Edwards was the first player selected by Cincinnati in the recent National Football League draft and he signed a four-year pact with the team Wednesday.

"It puts Eddie in the bracket of being paid among the top defensive linemen in the league. He's off to a good start," said Buoniconti.

No details were released by the club on the exact terms of Edwards' contract.

Although there have been some notable exceptions, the Bengals prospects have often come to the National Football League as relative unknowns.

Ken Anderson came from Augustana, Ill.; Boobie Clark, from Bethune; Cookman and Lenvill Elliott from Northeast Missouri State.

Among the exceptions are two-time Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin, from Ohio State University.

The 6-foot-4, 250-pound Edwards came highly touted out of the University of Miami, Fla.

The defensive tackle was called "the fastest and strongest defensive lineman in the draft," by Bengal officials when he was the first selection made by the Bengals in the recent NFL draft.

Award Prizes

Loraine Arledge, Shawnee Trail, won first place in the Washington Twp. Little League drawing Wednesday.

The top prize was a citizen band radio.

Carl Yastrzemski, who replaced Ted Williams as the Boston Red Sox left fielder 16 years ago, has now replaced the "Splendid Splinter" as Boston's all-time leader in hits.

"I think Ted Williams was the greatest hitter of all time in baseball, and if he hadn't missed those five years in the service, I'd probably still be chasing him for 10 years," Yastrzemski said after getting a single and a home run Thursday night to increase his career hit total to 2,655.

Williams, a member of the Hall of Fame, was a Marine pilot in World War II and the Korean conflict.

"Anytime you pass a guy like that, it's a thrill," Yastrzemski said.

Alston, Boudreau Join Hall Of Fame

NEWCOMERSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Walt Alston and Lou Boudreau, two former World Series-winning managers, lead a 1977 class of eight inductees into the Ohio Baseball Hall of Fame Saturday night.

Alston, from Darrrtown, Ohio, retired after 23 seasons with the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers in 1976, managing the National League power to seven pennants and four World Series championships.

Boudreau, as a player-manager with Cleveland in 1948, skippered the Indians in the 1948 American League pennant and a Series triumph over the Boston Braves. He was the AL's Most Valuable Player as a shortstop that season.

The other nominees this year are former NL President Warren Giles, ex-AL umpire Bill McKinley, Cincinnati coach and former Reds' slugger Ted Kluszewski, Roger Peckinpaugh, once an AL player and manager, and former pitching greats Johnny Vander Meer and Early Wynn.

The week-long celebration will wind up with the inductions, bringing to 20 now in the two-year-old shrine. A parade through Newcomerstown precedes the ceremony.

Butch Hobson's third home run in as many games, the Red Sox battered the Cleveland Indians 7-4 to remain atop the American League East Division race.

In other AL games Thursday, the Chicago White Sox edged Toronto 2-1, the New York Yankees defeated Milwaukee 6-3, Baltimore stopped Texas 6-1, Kansas City downed Detroit 4-1 and Seattle knocked off California 4-1.

White Sox 2, Blue Jays 1
Richie Zisk raced home from second on an error eighth-inning error to back Ken Kravec's three-hitter and give Chicago its victory. Kravec out-dueled loser Jerry Garvin, who yielded just four hits.

Zisk and Lamar Johnson walked after two were out in the eighth. When Eric Soderholm's sharp ground ball ricocheted off Toronto third baseman Dave McKay into left field, Zisk scored the winning run.

Yankees 6, Brewers 3
Two home runs by Reggie Jackson—his 14th and 15th of the year—and a two-run homer by George Zeber powered New York to its victory over Milwaukee.

Jackson smacked a two-run round-tripper in the seventh, snapping a 1-1 tie, and after Graig Nettles followed with a single, Zeber slammed his third homer of the season. Orioles 6, Rangers 1.

Fred Marti Grabs Tournament Lead

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Fred Marti took a sober, realistic view of his surprise first-round lead, forged on a record 64, in the $250,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

"Rarely does the first round leader go on to win the tournament," said the veteran Marti, who has yet to win in 14 years of tour activity. "Very few manage to go from wire to wire, so it's hard to say how important the lead is."

But his seven-under-par effort, a tournament record that included a string of five consecutive birdies, some fantastic approach shots and a 29 — another tournament mark — on the back nine, kept alive what he has called "the great American dream."

"You never know. In the next three years I could win a half million dollars. So could a lot of other guys. The opportunity is there."

Jack Nicklaus agreed.

"Fred's a good player. He should have won two or three tournaments,"

Nicklaus said. "You can't tell. He might win one and have a breakthrough, win a bunch of them."

Nicklaus and Tom Watson, though well back of Marti, resumed their duel that saw Watson win the British Open last week in one of golf's great confrontations. They matched 68s in the bright, hot sunshine, but both admitted to an emotional drain from the epic encounter in Turnberry, Scotland.

"I was playing on instinct," Watson said.

"It's always hard for me, the week after a major championship, for me to really get interested," Nicklaus said. "If I can just keep myself in position through the first couple of rounds, then the interest starts to build."

Sharing second, three shots back of Marti, were Ray Floyd and South African Dale Hayes, who had 67s on the 7,191-yard, par 71 Pleasant Valley Country Club course.

Seaver, Foster Lead Reds Past Braves, 7-1

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Tom Seaver is certainly the perfectionist. He isn't merely satisfied with a no-hitter—it has to be "arty."

"A no-hitter isn't necessarily anything," says the Cincinnati pitcher. "You can pitch a nohitter and give up 10 line drives. If I pitched an 'artful' no-hitter, that would be something."

It would be just like Seaver, then, to relish his performance Thursday night, even if it was "just" a two-hit, 7-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

"We needed a win today, and that was the important thing," said Seaver.

Along with Seaver's marvelous pitching performance, the Reds got some marvelous hitting from George Foster, who is on the hottest long-ball streak of his big league career.

Foster drove in five runs with three homers, taking over the National League home run leadership with 28 and padding his league-leading RBI total to 88.

"I thrive on pressure," said Foster, succinctly.

On his unusually high offensive totals, Foster remarked:

"I can't help but think about records. (But) I don't set specific goals for myself. Goals are good as far as setting guidelines for yourself, but if you think about them too much, you feel letdown if you don't accomplish them."

In limited National League action, the Houston Astros defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 and the St. Louis Cardinals tripped the Philadelphia Phillies 7-6 in 11 innings. The Chicago Cubs and New York Mets were postponed due to the after-effects of the massive power shortage that struck New York City Wednesday night.

Seaver, who also slugged a home run, walked the first two batters in the game and then retired 18 batters in a row. Willie Montanez hit a one-out double in the seventh inning to end Seaver's bid for his first career no-hitter. Foster became the 14th Reds' player ever to hit three home runs in a game.

of the game, before the Astros rallied. Cardinals 7, Phillies 6

Pinch-hitter Hector Cruz smashed a run-scoring double in the 11th inning, then scored the winning run as St. Louis defeated Philadelphia.

Before the Cardinals rallied to tie the game with a threerun ninth and then win it in the 11th, the Phillies had taken a 5-2 lead on sixth-inning homers by Greg Luzinski, Richie Hebner and Bob Boone.

Edwards Inks Fat Contract With Bengals

CINCINNATI (AP) — Attorney Nick Buoniconti has announced he's "delighted with the deal" that his client Eddie Edwards made in signing with the Cincinnati Bengals.

Edwards was the first player selected by Cincinnati in the recent National Football League draft and he signed a four-year pact with the team Wednesday.

"It puts Eddie in the bracket of being paid among the top defensive linemen in the league. He's off to a good start," said Buoniconti.

No details were released by the club on the exact terms of Edwards' contract.

Although there have been some notable exceptions, the Bengals prospects have often come to the National Football League as relative unknowns.

Ken Anderson came from Augustana, Ill.; Boobie Clark, from Bethune; Cookman and Lenvill Elliott from Northeast Missouri State.

Among the exceptions are two-time Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin, from Ohio State University.

The 6-foot-4, 250-pound Edwards came highly touted out of the University of Miami, Fla.

The defensive tackle was called "the fastest and strongest defensive lineman in the draft," by Bengal officials when he was the first selection made by the Bengals in the recent NFL draft.

Yaz, Bosox Batter Cleveland, 7-4

By BOB GREENE

Carl Yastrzemski, who replaced Ted Williams as the Boston Red Sox left fielder 16 years ago, has now replaced the "Splendid Splinter" as Boston's all-time leader in hits.

"I think Ted Williams was the greatest hitter of all time in baseball, and if he hadn't missed those five years in the service, I'd probably still be chasing him for 10 years," Yastrzemski said after getting a single and a home run Thursday night to increase his career hit total to 2,655.

Williams, a member of the Hall of Fame, was a Marine pilot in World War II and the Korean conflict.

"Anytime you pass a guy like that, it's a thrill," Yastrzemski said.

Alston, Boudreau Join Hall Of Fame

NEWCOMERSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Walt Alston and Lou Boudreau, two former World Series-winning managers, lead a 1977 class of eight inductees into the Ohio Baseball Hall of Fame Saturday night.

Alston, from Dartrtown, Ohio, retired after 23 seasons with the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers in 1976, managing the National League power to seven pennants and four World Series championships.

Boudreau, as a player-manager with Cleveland in 1948, skippered the Indians in the 1948 American League pennant and a Series triumph over the Boston Braves. He was the AL's Most Valuable Player as a shortstop that season.

The other nominees this year are former NL President Warren Giles, ex-AL umpire Bill McKinley, Cincinnati coach and former Reds' slugger Ted Kluszewski, Roger Peckinpaugh, once an AL player and manager, and former pitching greats Johnny Vander Meer and Early Wynn.

The week-long celebration will wind up with the inductions, bringing to 20 now in the two-year-old shrine. A parade through Newcomerstown precedes the ceremony.

ROTC Prof Air Crash Victim

VINE GROVE, KY. (AP) — The crash of a light plane here Thursday claimed the life of one Army officer and left another severely injured, Army officials said.

Killed was Maj. James Elwood Jones, 38, of Athens, Ohio, who had been an assistant professor of military science at Ohio University in Athens since June 1 and was on temporary duty with the Reserve Officer Training Corps at Ft. Knox, Army officials said.

Jones is survived by his wife Nancy of Huntington, W.Va., two daughters and a son, the Army said.

Listed in serious condition from head injuries was Maj. William Farrar Balfanz, 39, special assistant to the Chief of Staff for the ROTC Basic Camp at Ft. Knox.

The crash occurred about 9:30 a.m. as the single engine private plane apparently developed engine trouble while flying from Elizabethtown to Ft. Knox, and crashed while attempting an emergency landing.

A witness to the crash, Wilk Sparks, manager of the Frakes Lumber Co. in downtown Vine Grove, said the plane attempted to land in an open area behind the lumber company, but struck a power line and plummeted to the ground.

"Our lumber company sits right on the highway, and right in the back there's a little airstrip," said Sparks.

"The plane was coming down to this airstrip and it was evidently too low. He tried to gun it and give it gas, but it caught a pole and clipped it and then hit a power line.

"Then he crashed ... just took a nose-dive into the ground right at the back of our lumber company," Sparks said.

"Me and some of the boys ran out there and raised the tail section up enough to get them out," he added. The plane had flipped on impact "and they were like standing in it when we tried to get them out.

"One was unconscious all the time," said Sparks, "and another was asking for help and wanting to stand up. I understand he died.

"That one guy was awful bad," he said. "I've never seen anybody as broken up as that one was. His face was cut and a bone was protruding from his knee joint. He kept asking for help and was trying to stand up. We had to hold him down on the ground.

"Then when the helicopter came, they said that his pulse had quit and so we got him on the helicopter. They were treating him the whole way there (to Ireland Army Hospital at Ft. Knox)."

The Army airlifted both men to Ft. Knox, but Jones was dead on arrival, officials said.

Swanto Woman Wins Lottery 4th Time

CLEVELAND (AP) — "I can't believe it...I can't even imagine that much money," said M. Jane Hughes of Swanton after winning her fourth straight Pot O'Gold.

Mrs. Hughes—the winningest champion the weekly televised Ohio Lottery show has seen—won $95,000 in the Pot O'Gold game Thursday night, and now has a total of $350,000 from four appearances.

And the 51-year-old widow gets to come back next week for another try. She doesn't have any explanation for her lucky streak.

Did she have any good luck charms with her?

"I wore the horseshoe ring I wore last week," she replied and said she'll be wearing it again next week, "if I don't forget."

She said her brother, Michael Bailey of Columbus, gave her the ring two weeks ago.

She is the only defending champ who has lasted more than three weeks in the weekly, televised game.

Mrs. Hughes, a national director of the Appaloosa Youth Foundation, has said some of her winnings will go toward foundation scholarships.

Other Pot O'Gold winners included Mary E. Appleman, Canal Fulton, $8,500; Rosa Bonner, Columbus, $10,300; George R. Roesch, Sandusky, $7,700; James Foster, Worthington, $7,000, and Camille Recznik, Amherst, $8,100.

The following numbers were pulled in the weekly number drawing: 054-527-93325.

There was no TV Bonus drawing. The lottery commission has scheduled one, final drawing for persons sending in losing tickets from the Instant II game, which has ended. The final drawing will be July 28.

Registration Revenues Are Released

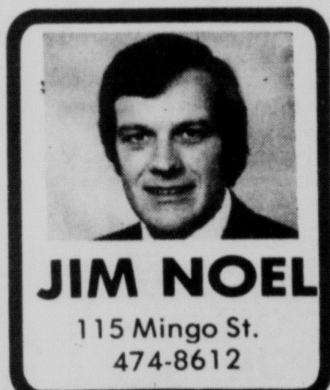

COLUMBUS — Governor James A. Rhodes today announced that the state is releasing the final installment of 1975 vehicle registration revenues for distribution among Ohio's 88 counties and taxing districts. Pickaway County will receive $35,268.27.

Governor Rhodes said that Bureau of Motor Vehicles Registrar Dean L. Dollison is in the process of releasing funds totaling $11,197,135.45, with all funds earmarked for local street and road improvement projects. With the earlier disbursements of over $83.7 million in 1977 vehicle registration revenue, this allocation will bring the total vehicle registration revenue returned to the local governments since May 31st to over $94.9 million.

The Governor reported that warrant requests are on the way to the State Auditor's office and said that BMV officials hope to have the checks in the mail to each taxing district by July 22.

Rhodes further noted that the total tax revenues returned to the 1146 taxing districts and counties from 1975 vehicle registration revenues is over $149.7 million dollars.

Laetrile Raid Made By Federal Agents

HEBRON, Ohio (AP) — Agents of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration raided the home and office of Buckeye Lake pharmacist Steven Michaelis Thursday in search of evidence of possible illegal distribution of Laetrile.

The agents, armed with search warrants and accompanied by federal marshals and representatives of the U.S. attorney's office, confiscated drugs and business records.

Robert Keating, an FDA consumer affairs officer, said material confiscated would be examined at laboratories in Cincinnati to determine if they are legal drug substances.

Michaelis was not arrested and no charges were filed against him, said John Palmer of the U.S. attorney's office.

backing he needs to carry on a legal battle over the drug.

There is no state law governing the sale or manufacture of Laetrile in Ohio. Since there are no state statutes, the federal laws prohibiting sale and distribution of the substance are effective.

However, the House recently overwhelmingly passed a bill to permit the manufacture, sale and distribution of Laetrile over the counter. It awaits action in a Senate committee.

Keating said after evaluating the findings FDA can make a civil seizure, obtain a civil order to stop any activity, or criminally prosecute.

Laetrile is a derivative of apricot and peach pits.

Keating said the purpose of the investigation is "to determine whether there are any illegal acts going on."

"These places are known to us to have been used in the past as bases for processing of drug shipments," Keating said. "This is a complete investigation to determine the scope, nature and purpose of the business enterprise thought to be going on in these locations."

Michaelis, who admits he fills physicians' prescriptions for Laetrile, would not estimate the quantity or dollar value of supplies confiscated, but said the raids will leave him "pretty destitute."

He said he was "sore at the bureaucracy" that prevents him from dispensing what he considers a helpful medicine in the treatment of cancer.

"They can't stop this because it works," Michaelis said.

He considers his work with Laetrile "practicing my profession" and said he thinks he can get the financial

Hail, Winds Cause Damage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms and high winds played havoc from Minnesota to Michigan, from Nebraska to Colorado and in the gulf coast area.

A number of tornadoes were reported Thursday in Minnesota and Wisconsin. There were no immediate reports of injuries or damage.

Large hail fell in Spring Valley, Minn. Damage reports include downed trees and utility poles.

Early morning temperatures around the nation ranged from 97 degrees in Needles, Calif. to 52 degrees in Kalispell, Mont.

Showers and thunderstorms were expected Friday from Florida westward across the gulf coast states. Shower activity also was expected over the mid-Mississippi and Ohio valley across the lower great lakes region.

ROTC Prof Air Crash Victim

VINE GROVE, KY. (AP) — The crash of a light plane here Thursday claimed the life of one Army officer and left another severely injured, Army officials said.

Killed was Maj. James Elwood Jones, 38, of Athens, Ohio, who had been an assistant professor of military science at Ohio University in Athens since June 1 and was on temporary duty with the Reserve Officer Training Corps at Ft. Knox, Army officials said.

Jones is survived by his wife Nancy of Huntington, W.Va., two daughters and a son, the Army said.

Listed in serious condition from head injuries was Maj. William Farrar Balfanz, 39, special assistant to the Chief of Staff for the ROTC Basic Camp at Ft. Knox.

The crash occurred about 9:30 a.m. as the single engine private plane apparently developed engine trouble while flying from Elizabethtown to Ft. Knox, and crashed while attempting an emergency landing.

A witness to the crash, Wilk Sparks, manager of the Frakes Lumber Co. in downtown Vine Grove, said the plane attempted to land in an open area behind the lumber company, but struck a power line and plummeted to the ground.

"Our lumber company sits right on the highway, and right in the back there's a little airstrip," said Sparks.

The plane was coming down to this strip and it was evidently too low. He tried to gun it and give it gas, but it caught a pole and clipped it and then it a power line.

"Then he crashed... just took a nose-dive into the ground right at the back of our lumber company," Sparks said.

"Me and some of the boys ran out here and raised the tail section up enough to get them out," he added. The plane had flipped on impact "and they were like standing in it when we tried to get them out."

"One was unconscious all the time," said Sparks, "and another was asking for help and wanting to stand up. I understand he died."

"That one guy was awful bad," he said. "I've never seen anybody as broken up as that one was. His face was cut and a bone was protruding from his knee joint. He kept asking for help and was trying to stand up. We had to hold him down on the ground."

"Then when the helicopter came, they said that his pulse had quit and so we got him on the helicopter. They were treating him the whole way there to Ireland Army Hospital at Ft. Knox."

The Army airlifted both men to Ft. Knox, but Jones was dead on arrival, officials said.

Swanto Woman Wins Lottery 4th Time

CLEVELAND (AP) — "I can't believe it...I can't even imagine that much money," said M. Jane Hughes of Swanton after winning her fourth straight Pot O'Gold.

Mrs. Hughes—the winningest champion the weekly televised Ohio Lottery show has seen—won $95,000 in the Pot O'Gold game Thursday night, and now has a total of $350,000 from four appearances.

And the 51-year-old widow gets to come back next week for another try. She doesn't have any explanation for her lucky streak.

Did she have any good luck charms with her?

"I wore the horseshoe ring I wore last week," she replied and said she'll be wearing it again next week, "if I don't forget."

She said her brother, Michael Bailey of Columbus, gave her the ring two weeks ago.

She is the only defending champ who has lasted more than three weeks in the weekly, televised game.

Mrs. Hughes, a national director of the Appaloosa Youth Foundation, has said some of her winnings will go toward foundation scholarships.

Other Pot O'Gold winners included Mary E. Appleman, Canal Fulton, $8,500; Rosa Bonner, Columbus, $10,300; George R. Roesch, Sandusky, $7,700; James Foster, Worthington, $7,000, and Camille Recznik, Amherst, $8,100.

The following numbers were pulled in the weekly number drawing: 054-527-93325.

There was no TV Bonus drawing. The lottery commission has scheduled one, final drawing for persons sending in losing tickets from the Instant II game, which has ended. The final drawing will be July 28.

Registration Revenues Are Released

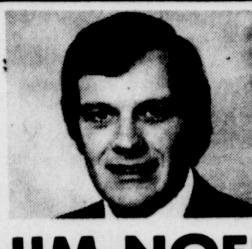

COLUMBUS — Governor James A. Rhodes today announced that the state is releasing the final installment of 15 vehicle registration revenues for distribution among Ohio's 88 counties and taxing districts. Pickaway County will receive $35,268.27.

Governor Rhodes said that Bureau of Motor Vehicles Registrar Dean L. Dollison is in the process of releasing funds totaling $11,197,135.45, with all funds earmarked for local street and road improvement projects. With the earlier disbursements of over $83.7 million in 1977 vehicle registration revenue, this allocation will bring the total vehicle registration revenue returned to the local governments since May 31st to over $94.9 million.

The Governor reported that warrant requests are on the way to the State Auditor's office and said that BMV officials hope to have the checks in the mail to each taxing district by July 22.

Rhodes further noted that the total tax revenues returned to the 1146 taxing districts and counties from 1975 vehicle registration revenues is over $149.7 million dollars.

"When you're sick or hurt, I can give you some old-fashioned attention."

Laetrile Raid Made By Federal Agents

HEBRON, Ohio (AP) — Agents of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration raided the home and office of Buckeye Lake pharmacist Steven Michaelis Thursday in search of evidence of possible illegal distribution of Laetrile.

The agents, armed with search warrants and accompanied by federal marshals and representatives of the U.S. attorney's office, confiscated drugs and business records.

Robert Keating, an FDA consumer affairs officer, said material confiscated would be examined at laboratories in Cincinnati to determine if they are legal drug substances.

Michaelis was not arrested and no charges were filed against him, said John Palmer of the U.S. attorney's office.

backing he needs to carry on a legal battle over the drug.

There is no state law governing the sale or manufacture of Laetrile in Ohio. Since there are no state statutes, the federal laws prohibiting sale and distribution of the substance are effective.

However, the House recently overwhelmingly passed a bill to permit the manufacture, sale and distribution of Laetrile over the counter. It awaits action in a Senate committee.

Keating said after evaluating the findings FDA can make a civil seizure, obtain a civil order to stop any activity, or criminally prosecute.

Laetrile is a derivative of apricot and peach pits.

Hail, Winds Cause Damage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms and high winds played havoc from Minnesota to Michigan, from Nebraska to Colorado and in the gulf coast area.

A number of tornadoes were reported Thursday in Minnesota and Wisconsin. There were no immediate reports of injuries or damage.

Large hail fell in Spring Valley, Minn. Damage reports include downed trees and utility poles.

Early morning temperatures around the nation ranged from 97 degrees in Needles, Calif. to 52 degrees in Kalispell, Mont.

Showers and thunderstorms were expected Friday from Florida westward across the gulf coast states. Shower activity also was expected over the mid-Mississippi and Ohio valley across the lower great lakes region.

HUBERT

Couple Spends Life As 'Ant People'

RENO, Nev. (AP) — George Wheeler has spent most of the last half-century on his hands and knees, the last 30 alongside his wife.

The Wheelers are myrmecologists — people who study ants. In fact they are two of only a dozen or so in America who study nothing but the tiny crawling creatures.

At 80, Wheeler still is going strong. He spends more time in the lab than he used to, and more time at the typewriter, as he and his wife put together yet another book on their speciality.

"I just fell into all this," said Wheeler. "I had a sixth-grade teacher interested in nature study. Later I attended Harvard and worked with a professor involved in ant study. He eventually turned over his work to me."

Since 1921, Wheeler has covered much of the United States and parts of Central America in search of the little devils. It makes no difference to him if they sting.

"I have to be careful with my knees. After all these years they have become sensitive from all this crawling around. It's not old age, it's just a hazard of the occupation," he said.

There are as many as 7,000 species of ants in the world, said Wheeler, 500 of them in the United States and 180 in Nevada.

"When people can name five species we think that's pretty good," he said. "But when we tell them there are 180 in Nevada, they are speechless."

Wheeler taught for many years at the University of North Dakota. He married his wife, Jeanette, once a student in one of his classes.

About 10 years ago when he retired, she got a job with the Desert Research Institute of Nevada and they moved to Reno. They have a lab with glass cases full of observation nests and extensive files.

And they have students to do some of their work. "We send our students into the higher elevations to find samples. We are getting too old for that. But in the summertime we still manage to get out to study ant nests," said Wheeler.

The couple is working on a book to document the ants of Nevada. That work is interrupted at times by other specialists asking for help on the files.

Wheeler specialty — ant larvae. "We are the only ones who really have worked on larvae and we get calls from everywhere on it," he said.

Wheeler said the study of ants centers on what effect they have on man, what they eat, what eats them and where they live.

Requests to identify a specific ant are common, and the Wheelers go to their specimens, match it and send back the answer. All in a day's work.

Fred Marti Grabs Tournament Lead

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Fred Marti took a sober, realistic view of his surprise first-round lead, forged on a record 64, in the $250,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

"Rarely does the first round leader go on to win the tournament," said the veteran Marti, who has yet to win in 14 years of tour activity. "Very few manage to go from wire to wire, so it's hard to say how important the lead is."

But his seven-under-par effort, a tournament record that included a string of five consecutive birdies, some fantastic approach shots and a 29 — another tournament mark — on the back nine, kept alive what he has called "the great American dream."

"You never know. In the next three years I could win a half million dollars. So could a lot of other guys. The opportunity is there."

Jack Nicklaus agreed.

"Fred's a good player. He should have won two or three tournaments,"

Nicklaus said. "You can't tell. He might win one and have a breakthrough, win a bunch of them."

Nicklaus and Tom Watson, though well back of Marti, resumed their duel that saw Watson win the British Open last week in one of golf's great confrontations. They matched 68s in the bright, hot sunshine, but both admitted to an emotional drain from the epic encounter in Turnberry, Scotland.

"I was playing on instinct," Watson said.

"It's always hard for me, the week after a major championship, for me to really get interested," Nicklaus said. "If I can just keep myself in position through the first couple of rounds, then the interest starts to build."

Sharing second, three shots back of Marti, were Ray Floyd and South African Dale Hayes, who had 67s on the 7,191-yard, par 71 Pleasant Valley Country Club course.

Seaver, Foster Lead Reds Past Braves, 7-1

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Tom Seaver is certainly the perfectionist. He isn't merely satisfied with a no-hitter—it has to be "arty."

"A no-hitter isn't necessarily anything," says the Cincinnati pitcher. "You can pitch a nohitter and give up 10 line drives. If I pitched an 'artful' no-hitter, that would be something."

It would be just like Seaver, then, to relish his performance Thursday night, even if it was "just" a two-hit, 7-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

"We needed a win today, and that was the important thing," said Seaver.

Along with Seaver's marvelous pitching performance, the Reds got some marvelous hitting from George Foster, who is on the hottest long-ball streak of his big league career.

Foster drove in five runs with three homers, taking over the National League home run leadership with 28 and padding his league-leading RBI total to 88.

"I thrive on pressure," said Foster, succinctly.

On his unusually high offensive totals, Foster remarked:

"I can't help but think about records. (But) I don't set specific goals for myself. Goals are good as far as setting guidelines for yourself, but if you think about them too much, you feel letdown if you don't accomplish them."

In limited National League action, the Houston Astros defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 and the St. Louis Cardinals tripped the Philadelphia Phillies 7-6 in 11 innings. The Chicago Cubs and New York Mets were postponed due to the after-effects of the massive power shortage that struck New York City Wednesday night.

Seaver, who also slugged a home run, walked the first two batters in the game and then retired 18 batters in a row. Willie Montanez hit a one-out double in the seventh inning to end Seaver's bid for his first career no-hitter. Foster became the 14th Reds' player ever to hit three home runs in a game.

Astros 4, Dodgers 3

A run-scoring double by Jose Cruz and RBI single by Joe Ferguson in the eighth inning broke up a duel between All-Star pitchers Joaquin Andujar of Houston and Don Sutton of Los Angeles and rallied the Astros over the Dodgers.

The Dodgers, who have lost five of their last six games, had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the eighth on a solo home run by Reggie Smith, his second of the game, before the Astros rallied.

Cardinals 7, Phillies 6

Pinch-hitter Hector Cruz smashed a run-scoring double in the 11th inning, then scored the winning run as St. Louis defeated Philadelphia.

Before the Cardinals rallied to tie the game with a three-run ninth and then win it in the 11th, the Phillies had taken a 5-2 lead on sixth-inning homers by Greg Luzinski, Richie Hebner and Bob Boone.

Edwards Inks Fat Contract With Bengals

CINCINNATI (AP) — Attorney Nick Buoniconti has announced he's "delighted with the deal" that his client Eddie Edwards made in signing with the Cincinnati Bengals.

Edwards was the first player selected by Cincinnati in the recent National Football League draft and he signed a four-year pact with the team Wednesday.

"It puts Eddie in the bracket of being paid among the top defensive linemen in the league. He's off to a good start," said Buoniconti.

No details were released by the club on the exact terms of Edwards' contract.

Although there have been some notable exceptions, the Bengals prospects have often come to the National Football League as relative unknowns.

Ken Anderson came from Augustana, Ill.; Boobie Clark, from Bethune; Cookman and Lervell Elliott from Northeast Missouri State.

Among the exceptions are two-time Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin, from Ohio State University.

The 6-foot-4, 250-pound Edwards came highly touted out of the University of Miami, Fla.

The defensive tackle was called "the fastest and strongest defensive lineman in the draft," by Bengal officials when he was the first selection made by the Bengals in the recent NFL draft.

Award Prizes

Loraine Arledge, Shawnee Trail, won first place in the Washington Twp. Little League drawing Wednesday.

The top prize was a citizen band radio.

Yaz, Bosox Batter Cleveland, 7-4

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Carl Yastrzemski, who replaced Ted Williams as the Boston Red Sox left fielder 16 years ago, has now replaced the "Splendid Splinter" as Boston's all-time leader in hits.

"I think Ted Williams was the greatest hitter of all time in baseball, and if he hadn't missed those five years in the service, I'd probably still be chasing him for 10 years," Yastrzemski said after getting a single and a home run Thursday night to increase his career hit total to 2,655.

Williams, a member of the Hall of Fame, was a Marine pilot in World War II and the Korean conflict.

"Anytime you pass a guy like that, it's a thrill," Yastrzemski said.

With Yastrzemski's two hits and

Butch Hobson's third home run in as many games, the Red Sox battered the Cleveland Indians 7-4 to remain atop the American League East Division race.

In other AL games Thursday, the Chicago White Sox edged Toronto 2-1, the New York Yankees defeated Milwaukee 6-3, Baltimore stopped Texas 6-1, Kansas City downed Detroit 4-1 and Seattle knocked off California 4-1.

White Sox 2, Blue Jays 1

Richie Zisk raced home from second on an error eighth-inning error to back Ken Kravec's three-hitter and give Chicago its victory. Kravec out-dued loser Jerry Garvin, who yielded just four hits.

Zisk and Lamar Johnson walked after two were out in the eighth. When Eric Soderholm's sharp ground ball ricocheted off Toronto third baseman Dave McKay into left field, Zisk scored the winning run.

Yankees 6, Brewers 3

Two home runs by Reggie Jackson—his 14th and 15th of the year—and a two-run homer by George Zeber powered New York to its victory over Milwaukee.

Jackson smacked a two-run round-tripper in the seventh, snapping a 1-1 tie, and after Graig Nettles followed with a single, Zeber slammed his third homer of the season. Orioles 6, Rangers 1.

Ross Grimsley threw slow and slower, giving up just seven hits, as Baltimore downed the Rangers.

Grimsley shut out the Rangers after the first inning after pitching his first shutout in two years in his last start.

The Orioles scored twice in the first with the help of a throwing error by Bump Wills and Ken Singleton's RBI double.

Royals 4, Tigers 3

Frank White continued his hitting streak with a single and double, driving in three runs to pace Kansas City to victory. White's RBI triple to right in the sixth inning marked the fifth consecutive game in which he has driven in a run.

Jason Thompson and Ron LeFlore homered for the Tigers.

Mariners 4, Angels 1

California pulled off a triple play, but Dick Pole and Enrique Romo combined to hold the Angels to just three hits as Seattle snapped a three-game losing streak. Angels relief pitcher Dyar Miller needed only one pitch to record the three outs.

Miller entered the game in the fifth inning with runners at first and second. Lee Stanton hit Miller's first pitch on the ground to third baseman Ron Jackson, who stepped on the bag for one out, threw to second for a force, and the relay to first retired Stanton by a step.

Alston, Boudreau Join Hall Of Fame

NEWCOMERSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Walt Alston and Lou Boudreau, two former World Series-winning managers, lead a 1977 class of eight inductees into the Ohio Baseball Hall of Fame Saturday night.

Alston, from Darrrtown, Ohio, retired after 23 seasons with the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers in 1976, managing the National League power to seven pennants and four World Series championships.

Boudreau, as a player-manager with Cleveland in 1948, skipped the Indians in the 1948 American League pennant and a Series triumph over the Boston Braves. He was the AL's Most Valuable Player as a shortstop that season.

The other nominees this year are former NL President Warren Giles, ex-AL umpire Bill McKinley, Cincinnati coach and former Reds' slugger Ted Kluszewski, Roger Peckinpaugh, once an AL player and manager, and former pitching greats Johnny Vander Meer and Early Wynn.

The week-long celebration will wind up with the inductions, bringing to 20 now in the two-year-old shrine. A parade through Newcomerstown precedes the ceremony.

Locklear, Chiefs Smear Clippers, 11-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syracuse's Gene Locklear slammed four homers to tie an International League baseball one-game record Thursday night as the Chiefs downed the Columbus Clippers 11-1.

In other games Pawtucket swamped Charleston 11-1, Rochester beat Richmond 7-2 and Toledo edged Tidewater 4-2.

In Columbus, the switch-hitting Locklear showed what a designated hitter can do. His four homer performance ties him with five other players for the single game mark.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR SATURDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): A day in which to emphasize stick-to-it-iveness. Curb an inclination to take off on unprofitable tangents through sheer boredom.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Keep travel and entertainment plans flexible. Some last-minute changes are possible, but accept them graciously. Don't argue pointlessly.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Single-handedly, you can institute improvement in many areas, bolster self-confidence in others, tie up loose ends. Minor matters may tend to irk: Don't let them.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Influences suggest precautions against needless errors, intemperate acts and thinking. Stress your innate common sense and amenability.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Don't be overly aggressive now. Hassles, useless, time-consuming disputes could mar the day. Keep your head above such troubling waters.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): You may gain more ground than many now, but also be held back on occasion because others are feeling more pressure, opposition. Try to understand.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): You may run into some complicated situations. Analyze carefully; discriminate between fact and rumor. Don't reject a proffered idea before you have fully understood it, however.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): Give of your know-how and experience and express your opinions if asked but, in the doing, avoid being critical or patronizing. Emphasize the positive!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 24 to Dec. 23): Give a new twist to routine to break its monotony. If an endeavor does not run out to your satisfaction, don't be pessimistic. Try another method.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 24 to Jan. 23): Teamwork will be your key to accomplishment during the next 48 hours. Even if you have to call someone at a distance to help further your aims, don't hesitate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 24 to Feb. 23): A fine day in which to capitalize on your unusual gift for combining the creative with the practical. You can produce some excellent results now.

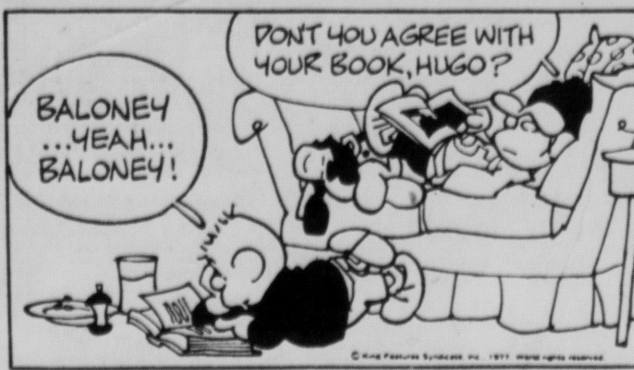

PISCES (Feb. 24 to Mar. 23): Venture forth where your beliefs are sound and you are sure you have the know-how. In the latter connection, you may need a bit more experience.

YOU BORN TODAY are a happy, warm-hearted individual, intellectual in your leanings, and endowed with a great love of heritage and tradition. You have a deep interest in people, places and events and would make an excellent journalist or news commentator. You also have an affinity for nature and the outdoors and could become an outstanding agriculturist. You tend to be more restless than most Cancerians and this trait could lead you to travel and exploration - if you use it constructively. A mere scattering of energies through want of change, however, could hinder success. Birthdate of: Sir Joshua Reynolds, Eng. painter; Mary Baker Eddy, founder of Christian Science Church; Barbara Stanwyck and Ginger Rogers, noted screen stars.

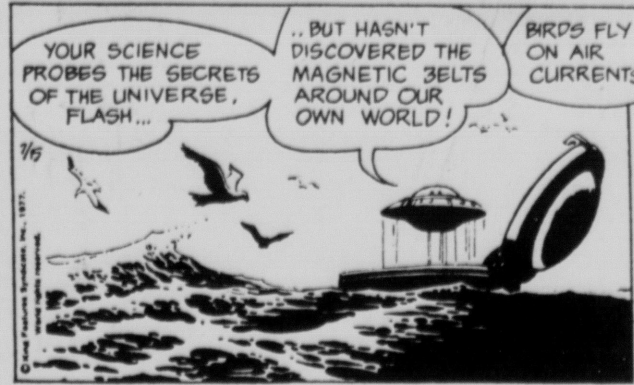

Plaka Preserved
NEW YORK (AP) - Four sections of the Plaka, the part of Athens which lies at the foot of the Acropolis, have become "preserved areas," reports the Greek national Tourist Organization.

The organization said that motor traffic will be banned in the designated sections, as well as all taverns, shops and noisy nightclubs. The Greek government will give long-term, low-rate loans for the restoration and preservation of all buildings over 200 years old. The Tourist Organization said that it anticipates the building of deluxe apartments, antique shops and fashion salons in the restored sections.

ROTC Prof Air Crash Victim

VINE GROVE, KY. (AP) — The crash of a light plane here Thursday claimed the life of one Army officer and left another severely injured, Army officials said.

Killed was Maj. James Elwood Jones, 38, of Athens, Ohio, who had been an assistant professor of military science at Ohio University in Athens since June 1 and was on temporary duty with the Reserve Officer Training Corps at Ft. Knox, Army officials said.

Jones is survived by his wife Nancy of Huntington, W.Va., two daughters and a son, the Army said.

Listed in serious condition from head injuries was Maj. William Farrar Balfanz, 39, special assistant to the Chief of Staff for the ROTC Basic Camp at Ft. Knox.

The crash occurred about 9:30 a.m. as the single engine private plane apparently developed engine trouble while flying from Elizabethtown to Ft. Knox, and crashed while attempting an emergency landing.

A witness to the crash, Wilk Sparks, manager of the Frakes Lumber Co. in downtown Vine Grove, said the plane attempted to land in an open area behind the lumber company, but struck a power line and plummeted to the ground.

"Our lumber company sits right on the highway, and right in the back there's a little airstrip," said Sparks.

"The plane was coming down to this airstrip and it was evidently too low. He tried to gun it and give it gas, but it caught a pole and clipped it and then hit a power line."

"Then he crashed ... just took a nose-dive into the ground right at the back of our lumber company," Sparks said.

"Me and some of the boys ran out there and raised the tail section up enough to get them out," he added. The plane had flipped on impact "and they were like standing in it when we tried to get them out."

"One was unconscious all the time," said Sparks, "and another was asking for help and wanting to stand up. I understand he died."

"That one guy was awful bad," he said. "I've never seen anybody as broken up as that one was. His face was cut and a bone was protruding from his knee joint. He kept asking for help and was trying to stand up. We had to hold him down on the ground."

"Then when the helicopter came, they said that his pulse had quit and so we got him on the helicopter. They were treating him the whole way there (to Ireland Army Hospital at Ft. Knox)."

The Army airlifted both men to Ft. Knox, but Jones was dead on arrival, officials said.

Swanto Woman Wins Lottery 4th Time

CLEVELAND (AP) — "I can't believe it...I can't even imagine that much money," said M. Jane Hughes of Swanton after winning her fourth straight Pot O'Gold.

Mrs. Hughes—the winningest champion the weekly televised Ohio Lottery show has seen—won $95,000 in the Pot O'Gold game Thursday night, and now has a total of $350,000 from four appearances.

And the 51-year-old widow gets to come back next week for another try. She doesn't have any explanation for her lucky streak.

Did she have any good luck charms with her?

"I wore the horseshoe ring I wore last week," she replied and said she'll be wearing it again next week, "if I don't forget."

She said her brother, Michael Bailey of Columbus, gave her the ring two weeks ago.

She is the only defending champ who has lasted more than three weeks in the weekly, televised game.

Mrs. Hughes, a national director of the Appaloosa Youth Foundation, has said some of her winnings will go toward foundation scholarships.

Other Pot O'Gold winners included Mary E. Appleman, Canal Fulton, $8,500; Rosa Bonner, Columbus, $10,300; George R. Roesch, Sandusky, $7,700; James Foster, Worthington, $7,000, and Camille Recznik, Amherst, $8,100.

The following numbers were pulled in the weekly number drawing: 054-527-93325.

There was no TV Bonus drawing. The lottery commission has scheduled one, final drawing for persons sending in losing tickets from the Instant II game, which has ended. The final drawing will be July 28.

Registration Revenues Are Released

COLUMBUS — Governor James A. Rhodes today announced that the state is releasing the final installment of 1975 vehicle registration revenues for distribution among Ohio's 88 counties and taxing districts. Pickaway County will receive $35,268.27.

Governor Rhodes said that Bureau of Motor Vehicles Registrar Dean L. Dollison is in the process of releasing funds totaling $11,197,135.45, with all funds earmarked for local street and road improvement projects. With the earlier disbursements of over $83.7 million in 1977 vehicle registration revenue, this allocation will bring the total vehicle registration revenue returned to the local governments since May 31st to over $94.9 million.

The Governor reported that warrant requests are on the way to the State Auditor's office and said that BMV officials hope to have the checks in the mail to each taxing district by July 22.

Rhodes further noted that the total tax revenues returned to the 1146 taxing districts and counties from 1975 vehicle registration revenues is over $149.7 million dollars.

Laetrile Raid Made By Federal Agents

HEBRON, Ohio (AP) — Agents of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration raided the home and office of Buckeye Lake pharmacist Steven Michaelis Thursday in search of evidence of possible illegal distribution of Laetrile.

The agents, armed with search warrants and accompanied by federal marshals and representatives of the U.S. attorney's office, confiscated drugs and business records.

Robert Keating, an FDA consumer affairs officer, said material confiscated would be examined at laboratories in Cincinnati to determine if they are legal drug substances.

Michaelis was not arrested and no charges were filed against him, said John Palmer of the U.S. attorney's office.

backing he needs to carry on a legal battle over the drug.

There is no state law governing the sale or manufacture of Laetrile in Ohio. Since there are no state statutes, the federal laws prohibiting sale and distribution of the substance are effective.

However, the House recently overwhelmingly passed a bill to permit the manufacture, sale and distribution of Laetrile over the counter. It awaits action in a Senate committee.

Keating said after evaluating the findings FDA can make a civil seizure, obtain a civil order to stop any activity, or criminally prosecute.

Laetrile is a derivative of apricot and peach pits.

Hail, Winds Cause Damage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms and high winds played havoc from Minnesota to Michigan, from Nebraska to Colorado and in the gulf coast area.

A number of tornadoes were reported Thursday in Minnesota and Wisconsin. There were no immediate reports of injuries or damage.

Large hail fell in Spring Valley, Minn. Damage reports include downed trees and utility poles.

Early morning temperatures around the nation ranged from 97 degrees in Needles, Calif. to 52 degrees in Kalispell, Mont.

Showers and thunderstorms were expected Friday from Florida westward across the gulf coast states. Shower activity also was expected over the mid-Mississippi and Ohio valley across the lower great lakes region.

CRASH SCENE — This was the scene of an 11:01 crash Thursday morning at the intersection of Northridge Road and N. Pickaway Streets. According to the report, Paulene Hundley, 64, of 355 Markley Drive, was westbound on Northridge Road and had stopped to make a left turn onto N. Pickaway. A car driven by Walter Yamarick, 51, 356 Markley Drive, was stopping behind the Hundley auto, when a car driven by Tamara L. Garrett, 16, 355 E.

Franklin St., struck the rear of Yamarick's auto. The impact shoved the Yamarick vehicle into Mrs. Hundley's car. She was treated and released from Berger Hospital for a head injury. Yamarick was treated and released for a neck injury, and Miss Garrett was treated and released for a laceration to her chin and a head injury. The accident is still under investigation by Ptl. Ron Smith of the Circleville Police Department.

Somalia Trims Soviet Advisers

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The number of Soviet advisers in neighboring Somalia is gradually being cut back, diplomats here say. The move could signify either a Soviet "tilt" toward Somalia's archenemy, Ethiopia, or a Somali decision to lean more on the Arab world for support.

The diplomats said the extent of the reduction in the Soviet presence is not known. Most of the 5,000 to 6,000 Soviet advisers working in Somalia are military specialists.

But the diplomats said Russians leaving the country either on leave or at the end of their tour of duty are not being replaced.

The diplomatic sources said it was not clear whether the cutback was initiated by the Soviets or demanded by the leftist regime of Somali President Siad Barre.

Diplomats speculate that Barre has already decided to radically reduce his ties with the Soviets in return for pledges of support from conservative Arab states concerned over Soviet influence in Somalia and the rest of the strategic Horn of Africa, between the Indian Ocean and the Gulf of Aden at the southern entrance to the Red Sea.

Barre returned Thursday from a visit to Saudi Arabia, where a Somali spokesman said he consulted with other members of the Arab League as well as with the Saudis. The president would not discuss his mission with Western reporters.

Florida Man Charged With Shoplifting

The Circleville Police arrested a Miami, Florida man for shoplifting Thursday afternoon at the Kochheiser Hardware Store.

According to the report, two ladies in the Monique Fabric Shop saw a man remove three baking pans from underneath his sport coat and give them to a lady in the rear seat of a Monte Carlo that was parked directly in front of the fabric shop. Afterwards the man and woman entered Kochheiser's again. The two witnesses informed owner Red Wilson, and he asked them to call the police.

When Ptl. Ron Smith and Capt. Jerry Smallwood arrived on the scene, the subjects were starting to pull from the curb in the Monte Carlo. The officers stopped the couple and took them inside Kochheiser's. Permission was granted to search the auto, and Capt. Smallwood found three nine inch baking pans and a Mirro pressure cooker in the rear seat of the auto in a green garbage bag.

The subjects were taken to police headquarters, where Lewis Cook served as an interpreter for the Spanish speaking subjects.

Police charged Juan Bautista Urra, 28, of Miami, Florida, with shoplifting.

Helicopter Downing Won't Affect Carter Withdrawal Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has no plans to reevaluate the planned withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea despite the downing of a U.S. Army helicopter by North Koreans in the first potential military crisis of his administration.

The North Koreans have been relatively restrained in their references to the incident, a mood which has not escaped the White House.

Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, noted Thursday evening that "both they and we have remained reasonably calm in our statements compared with past situations."

He said that by Thursday afternoon, the situation room at the White House, "which the night before was bustling with activity with the secretary of defense, the secretary of state, the vice president and the national security adviser and all the sophisticated communications equipment, was calm and quiet with its normal complement of men."

The North Koreans, rejecting a request from the United Nations Command to meet for a discussion of the incident Thursday or early today, said they would attend a session at 11 a.m. Saturday (10 p.m. EDT today).

The U.S.-led U.N. Command announced in Seoul it was accepting the offer and asked the communists to return the surviving crewmen and the three bodies at that time.

There was no indication whether the request would be met.

The North Koreans said today the helicopter crew ignored "repeated warnings" before the craft was brought down.

Powell said earlier at his daily news briefing that Carter's plan to withdraw over the next four to five years the 33,000 U.S. ground troops in South Korea was based on the ability of the South Koreans to defend themselves.

He said he knew of nothing related to the helicopter incident that would change the administration's plans.

The North Koreans opened fire on the helicopter, a CH47 Chinook, Thursday after it strayed north over the demilitarized zone separating North and South Korea. Three crew members were killed. A fourth was wounded and captured.

The Defense Department identified the four as Sgt. Robert C. Haynes, 29, Anniston, Ala.; Sgt. Ron Wells, 22, El Paso, Tex.; CWO Glenn M. Schwanke, 28, Spring Green, Wis. and CWO Joseph A. Miles, 26, Washington, Ind.

Pentagon officials said they did not know which of the men had been killed.

The last time a U.S. helicopter was shot down over North Korea, the North Koreans said it was "a provocation by U.S. imperialists." The first meeting on the incident did not take place until Aug. 29, 1969, 12 days after it occurred, and the three crew members were not released until Dec. 3, 1969, when the United States signed a document stating that it was responsible for "a criminal act."

BANKAMERICARD MASTER CHARGE

Mass Kidnap Anniversary Quiet

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — Men in sweaty workclothes and a woman in big hair curlers sipped coffee at the counter of the Tommyhawk Restaurant, once jammed with reporters from across the nation. Hardly a word is uttered about the alarm that went out one year ago today: 26 children and the driver of a school bus were kidnaped.

The story grabbed the world's attention, and for a few days media command posts made this town buzz with activity.

"No one talks about it much anymore," waitress Tammy Powell tells a visiting reporter on a scorching summer day. "You people from out of town are more interested in it now than we are."

Those who think about the case at all say they would rather forget it. And some think the only people who care about the busnaping case are reporters who have to cover the current pre-trial hearings for three defendants. The hearings, recessed today, were to resume Monday.

Jim Dumas was mayor during the busnaping. He blames the media for prolonging the attention heaped on this normally peaceful community of 4,500.

"What do you guys want to come back here and stir it all up for?" he demands. "I would have just preferred to let the anniversary day pass without any notice whatsoever."

For some of the youngsters involved in the incident, it isn't so easy.

The trauma continues for Mike Marshall, 15. The kidnap occurred on the only day he took the bus home from school.

"I'm more cautious of stuff," he says. He was the oldest of the youngsters kidnaped that day and has been credited with helping engineer their escape.

"I don't think I will ever forget it. When I come home by myself ... at night — I wouldn't have thought about it before — but now I think about the kidnaping and get a little scared."

On that day last July 15 when the children failed to come home from their summer school outing and their abandoned bus was found near a dusty roadside, an all-out search was launched.

But the youngsters and driver Ed Ray were 100 miles away, trapped in a buried moving van. After 18 hours in the makeshift prison, they managed to burrow to freedom. None was seriously injured by the brush with death, a fact which may have made the incident easier for this sun-baked town to forget.

Chowchilla does have one concern as its star of notoriety fades. Some townspeople feel that the three young men charged in the case may never be tried.

James Schoenfeld, 24, his brother Richard, 23, and Frederick Woods, 24, are being held in Alameda County as the pre-trial hearings continue. They have pleaded innocent to kidnap and robbery charges and are being held in lieu of $1 million bail each.

Freeman Takes Out Petitions

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sen. Robert D. Freeman, D-29 Canton, took out petitions at the secretary of state's office Thursday to seek the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor in the 1978 elections.

The 56-year-old former Stark County commissioner acted well in advance of the March 1978 filing deadline, but did so to have more time to make his name better known, he said.

"This is going to be a Jimmy Carter-type campaign," he said, adding he plans to hit the county fair circuit later in the summer.

Freeman took the opportunity to speak out against the House version of a pending bill, under which candidates for lieutenant governor would be picked by gubernatorial candidates prior to next year's primary.

The bill now is deadlocked in the Senate-House conference committee, with the upper chamber insisting on its version which would have candidates for both offices run on their own in the primary, then join to form a tandem ticket in the general election.

Voters in 1976 authorized the joint election of the two top officials, but left it up to the legislature to determine how they would be nominated.

Freeman said "I am unalterably opposed to the so-called tandem election of the governor and lieutenant governor in the primary. This device takes the choice away from the people and gives it to the boys in the back room. That's a giant step backward."

Couple Spends Life As 'Ant People'

RENO, Nev. (AP) — George Wheeler has spent most of the last half-century on his hands and knees, the last 30 alongside his wife.
The Wheelers are myrmecologists — people who study ants. In fact they are two of only a dozen or so in America who study nothing but the tiny crawling creatures.
At 80, Wheeler still is going strong. He spends more time in the lab than he used to, and more time at the typewriter, as he and his wife put together yet another book on their speciality.
"I just fell into all this," said Wheeler. "I had a sixth-grade teacher interested in nature study. Later I attended Harvard and worked with a professor involved in ant study. He eventually turned over his work to me."
Since 1921, Wheeler has covered much of the United States and parts of Central America in search of the little devils. It makes no difference to him if they sting.
"I have to be careful with my knees. After all these years they have become sensitive from all this crawling around. It's not old age, it's just a hazard of the occupation," he said.
There are as many as 7,000 species of ants in the world, said Wheeler, 500 of them in the United States and 180 in Nevada.
"When people can name five species we think that's pretty good," he said. "But when we tell them there are 180 in Nevada, they are speechless."
Wheeler taught for many years at the University of North Dakota. He married his wife, Jeanette, once a student in one of his classes.
About 10 years ago when he retired, she got a job with the Desert Research Institute of Nevada and they moved to Reno. They have a lab with glass cases full of observation nests and extensive files.
And they have students to do some of their work.
"We send our students into the higher elevations to find samples. We are getting too old for that. But in the summertime we still manage to get out to study ant nests," said Wheeler.
The couple is working on a book to document the ants of Nevada. That work is interrupted at times by other specialists asking for help on the files.
Wheeler specialty — ant larvae.
"We are the only ones who really have worked on larvae and we get calls from everywhere on it," he said.
Wheeler said the study of ants centers on what effect they have on man, what they eat, what eats them and where they live.
Requests to identify a specific ant are common, and the Wheelers go to their specimens, match it and send back the answer. All in a day's work.

Views On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) - In September, when the networks roll out their new programs in a blaze of publicity, a non-network show starring Richard M. Nixon will be out there competing for attention.

It's his fifth and final talk-for-pay program with David Frost, the British talk show star. It's now being offered stations for telecast, at their option, between Sept. 6 and 16.

And, says Frost's business partner, Marvin Minoff, it'll include what Frost calls the most-asked question: Why didn't Nixon burn those damning Watergate tapes that forced him to resign the presidency?

The question was one of scores Frost asked the ex-president, whom he reportedly paid $600,000 plus a share of the profits, during 12 taped interview sessions near San Clemente in March and April.

The answer never aired during any of the four Nixon-Frost interviews, televised on May 4, 12, 19 and 25.

But after the first show, in which Nixon insisted he didn't obstruct justice in the Watergate case, an ebullient Frost said response to the program was so great he'd decided to put out a fifth one.

He said it would contain material for which there wasn't room in the earlier shows, including the tape-burning question.

He was right about response - in ratings - for the opening show: Nielsen figures say it was seen in 17.3 million homes nationally.

Not so the second show: It drew less than half that audience. Viewing slumped further to about 6.3 million for the third show, but rallied slightly to 6.5 million homes tuning in the May 25 episode.

It was a far cry from the 17.8 million homes an official at Syndicast Services, the New York firm distributing the programs, initially had said each program might average.

But Minoff insists he wasn't disappointed by the returns. "It was record-breaking for a news show, in terms of it not being carried on a network, so the results still were quite spectacular," he said.

According to Leonard Koch, Syndicast's executive vice-president, the fifth Nixon-Frost chapter is being pitched to stations under much different terms than attended the earlier four programs.

It's being sold outright for cash, the tab ranging from $1,000 to more than $10,000 for one-time-only rights to air the show.

In contrast, the other programs were "bartered," stations getting them free with ad time they could sell in return for airing national commercials the Frost folk were offering for $125,000 a minute.

And the 164 stations with the shows had to televise them in prime time on the May nights specified by Frost. Now, Koch says, purchasing stations can air the fifth show at any hour between Sept. 6-16.

He said that so far 40 stations have bought rights to air the program and that he expects a total of 75 to be signed by September.

But that's not all. Weird as it may sound, he says stations also are being offered the right to buy a rerun - of Frost's first and highest-rated Richard M. Nixon show.

September's episode ends the Nixon project, Minoff said.

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR SATURDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): A day in which to emphasize stick-to-it-iveness. Curb an inclination to take off on unprofitable tangents through sheer boredom.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Keep travel and entertainment plans flexible. Some last-minute changes are possible, but accept them graciously. Don't argue pointlessly.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Single-handedly, you can institute improvement in many areas, bolster self-confidence in others, tie up loose ends. Minor matters may tend to irk: Don't let them.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Influences suggest precautions against needless errors, impetuous acts and thinking. Stress your innate common sense and amenability.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Don't be overly aggressive now. Hassles, useless, time-consuming disputes could mar the day. Keep your head above such troubling waters.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): You may gain more ground than many now, but also be held back on occasion because others are feeling more pressure, opposition. Try to understand.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): You may run into some complicated situations. Analyze carefully; discriminate between fact and rumor. Don't reject a proffered idea before you have fully understood it, however.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Give of your know-how and experience and express your opinions if asked but, in the doing, avoid being critical or patronizing. Emphasize the positive!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Give a new twist to routine to break its monotony. If an endeavor does not run out to your satisfaction, don't be pessimistic. Try another method.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Teamwork will be your key to accomplishment during the next 48 hours. Even if you have to call someone at a distance to help further your aims, don't hesitate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): A fine day in which to capitalize on your unusual gift for combining the creative with the practical. You can produce some excellent results now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Venture forth where your beliefs are sound and you are sure you have the know-how. In the latter connection, you may need a bit more experience.

YOU BORN TODAY are a happy, warm-hearted individual, intellectual in your leanings, and endowed with a great love of heritage and tradition. You have a deep interest in people, places and events and would make an excellent journalist or news commentator. You also have an affinity for nature and the outdoors and could become an outstanding agriculturist. You tend to be more restless than most Cancerians and this trait could lead you to travel and exploration - if you use it constructively. A mere scattering of energies through want of change, however, could hinder success. Plaka Preserved

NEW YORK (AP) - Four sections of the Plaka, the part of Athens which lies at the foot of the Acropolis, have become "preserved areas," reports the Greek national Tourist Organization.

The organization said that motor traffic will be banned in the designated sections, as well as all taverns, shops and noisy nightclubs.

The Greek government will give long-term, low-rate loans for the restoration and preservation of all buildings over 200 years old. The Tourist Organization said that it anticipates the building of deluxe apartments, antique shops and fashion salons in the restored sections.

CRASH SCENE — This was the scene of an 11:01 crash Thursday morning at the intersection of Northridge Road and N. Pickaway Streets. According to the report, Paulene Hundley, 64, of 355 Markley Drive, was westbound on Northridge Road and had stopped to make a left turn onto N. Pickaway. A car driven by Walter Yamarick, 51, 356 Markley Drive, was stopping behind the Hundley auto, when a car driven by Tamara L. Garrett, 16, 355 E.

Franklin St., struck the rear of Yamarick's auto. The impact shoved the Yamarick vehicle into Mrs. Hundley's car. She was treated and released from Berger Hospital for a head injury. Yamarick was treated and released for a neck injury, and Miss Garrett was treated and released for a laceration to her chin and a head injury. The accident is still under investigation by Ptl. Ron Smith of the Circleville Police Department.

Mass Kidnap Anniversary Quiet

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — Men in sweaty workclothes and a woman in big hair curlers sipped coffee at the counter of the Tommyhawk Restaurant, once jammed with reporters from across the nation. Hardly a word is uttered about the alarm that went out one year ago today: 26 children and the driver of a school bus were kidnapped.

The story grabbed the world's attention, and for a few days media command posts made this town buzz with activity.

"No one talks about it much anymore," waitress Tammy Powell tells a visiting reporter on a scorching summer day. "You people from out of town are more interested in it now than we are."

Those who think about the case at all say they would rather forget it. And some think the only people who care about the busnapping case are reporters who have to cover the current pre-trial hearings for three defendants. The hearings, recessed today, were to resume Monday.

Jim Dumas was mayor during the busnapping. He blames the media for prolonging the attention heaped on this normally peaceful community of 4,500.

"What do you guys want to come back here and stir it all up for?" he demands. "I would have just preferred to let the anniversary day pass without any notice whatsoever."

For some of the youngsters involved in the incident, it isn't so easy.

The trauma continues for Mike Marshall, 15. The kidnap occurred on the only day he took the bus home from school.

"I'm more cautious of stuff," he says. He was the oldest of the youngsters kidnaped that day and has been credited with helping engineer their escape.

"I don't think I will ever forget it. When I come home by myself ... at night — I wouldn't have thought about it before — but now I think about the kidnapping and get a little scared."

On that day last July 15 when the children failed to come home from their summer school outing and their abandoned bus was found near a dusty roadside, an all-out search was launched.

But the youngsters and driver Ed Ray were 100 miles away, trapped in a buried moving van. After 18 hours in the makeshift prison, they managed to burrow to freedom. None was

Judge OKs Takeover

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Leroy Contie ruled Friday in favor of United Technology Corp.'s $512 million bid to take over Babcock & Wilcox Co.

Contie ruled in favor of all UT's claims, his clerk said.

B&W is headquartered in New York and has extensive operations in Ohio, had gone to court to block the takeover bid, saying that UT, which is based in Hartford, Conn., was a competitor and a merger would violate antitrust laws.

UT and B&W are leading makers of power generating equipment. B&W had argued that an acquisition would put its steam-power systems in competition with UT's gas turbine in the electrical generation and marine markets.

UT denied the competition argument, saying the systems serve different uses within the two markets.

B&W also had argued early in its fight that the $42 United offered per share didn't represent the stock's value, although it then was selling below $40.

Earlier this month, the U.S. Justice Department filed an antitrust suit to prevent UT from acquiring B&W. The federal agency asked U.S. District Court in Hartford to ban UT from acquiring additional shares of B&W stock.

In June, the Ohio Securities Division cleared the way for the merger. B&W is appealing that decision.

seriously injured by the brush with death, a fact which may have made the incident easier for this sun-baked town to forget.

Chowchilla does have one concern as its star of notoriety fades. Some townspeople feel that the three young men charged in the case may never be tried.

James Schoenfeld, 24, his brother Richard, 23, and Frederick Woods, 24, are being held in Alameda County as the pre-trial hearings continue. They have pleaded innocent to kidnap and robbery charges and are being held in lieu of $1 million bail each.

Freeman Takes Out Petitions

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sen. Robert D. Freeman, D-29 Canton, took out petitions at the secretary of state's office Thursday to seek the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor in the 1978 elections.

The 56-year-old former Stark County commissioner acted well in advance of the March 1978 filing deadline, but did so to have more time to make his name better known, he said.

"This is going to be a Jimmy Carter-type campaign," he said, adding he plans to hit the county fair circuit later in the summer.

Freeman took the opportunity to speak out against the House version of a pending bill, under which candidates for lieutenant governor would be picked by gubernatorial candidates prior to next year's primary.

The bill now is deadlocked in the Senate-House conference committee, with the upper chamber insisting on its version which would have candidates for both offices run on their own in the primary, then join to form a tandem ticket in the general election.

Voters in 1976 authorized the joint election of the two top officials, but left it up to the legislature to determine how they would be nominated.

Freeman said "I am unalterably opposed to the so-called tandem election of the governor and lieutenant governor in the primary. This device takes the choice away from the people and gives it to the boys in the back room. That's a giant step backward."

Somalia Trims Soviet Advisers

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The number of Soviet advisers in neighboring Somalia is gradually being cut back, diplomats here say. The move could signify either a Soviet "tilt" toward Somalia's archenemy, Ethiopia, or a Somali decision to lean more on the Arab world for support.

The diplomats said the extent of the reduction in the Soviet presence is not known. Most of the 5,000 to 6,000 Soviet advisers working in Somalia are military specialists.

But the diplomats said Russians leaving the country either on leave or at the end of their tour of duty are not being replaced.

The diplomatic sources said it was not clear whether the cutback was initiated by the Soviets or demanded by the leftist regime of Somali President Siad Barre.

Diplomats speculate that Barre has already decided to radically reduce his ties with the Soviets in return for pledges of support from conservative Arab states concerned over Soviet influence in Somalia and the rest of the strategic Horn of Africa, between the Indian Ocean and the Gulf of Aden at the southern entrance to the Red Sea.

Barre returned Thursday from a visit to Saudi Arabia, where a Somali spokesman said he consulted with other members of the Arab League as well as with the Saudis. The president would not discuss his mission with Western reporters.

Florida Man Charged With Shoplifting

The Circleville Police arrested a Miami, Florida man for shoplifting Thursday afternoon at the Kochheiser Hardware Store.

According to the report, two ladies in the Monique Fabric Shop saw a man remove three baking pans from underneath his sport coat and give them to a lady in the rear seat of a Monte Carlo that was parked directly in front of the fabric shop. Afterwards the man and woman entered Kochheiser's again. The two witnesses informed owner Red Wilson, and he asked them to call the police.

When Ptl. Ron Smith and Capt. Jerry Smallwood arrived on the scene, the subjects were starting to pull from the curb in the Monte Carlo. The officers stopped the couple and took them inside Kochheiser's. Permission was granted to search the auto, and Capt. Smallwood found three nine inch baking pans and a Mirro pressure cooker in the rear seat of the auto in a green garbage bag.

The subjects were taken to police headquarters, where Lewis Cook served as an interpreter for the Spanish speaking subjects.

Police charged Juan Bautista Urrea, 28, of Miami, Florida, with shoplifting.

Helicopter Downing Won't Affect Carter Withdrawal Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has no plans to reevaluate the planned withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea despite the downing of a U.S. Army helicopter by North Koreans in the first potential military crisis of his administration.

The North Koreans have been relatively restrained in their references to the incident, a mood which has not escaped the White House.

Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, noted Thursday evening that "both they and we have remained reasonably calm in our statements compared with past situations."

He said that by Thursday afternoon, the situation room at the White House, "which the night before was bustling with activity with the secretary of defense, the secretary of state, the vice president and the national security adviser and all the sophisticated communications equipment, was calm and quiet with its normal complement of men."

The North Koreans, rejecting a request from the United Nations Command to meet for a discussion of the incident Thursday or early today, said they would attend a session at 11 a.m. Saturday (10 p.m. EDT today).

The U.S.-led U.N. Command announced in Seoul it was accepting the offer and asked the communists to return the surviving crewmen and the three bodies at that time.

There was no indication whether the request would be met.

The North Koreans said today the helicopter crew ignored "repeated warnings" before the craft was brought down.

Gambling Bill Blasted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill now before a state Senate subcommittee will lead to wide open gambling in Ohio's bars if passed as is, the director of the state's Department of Liquor Control said recently.

An amendment to Substitute House Bill 72 prevents the Ohio Liquor Control Commission from banning bingo and other gambling on premises which hold liquor permits. All gambling, except the sale of lottery tickets, currently is banned.

"This amendment would eliminate the long-standing control of gambling where liquor is sold," director Clifford E. Reich said. "This is shocking in view of the long-term benefit in preventing the dangerous and volatile combination of gambling and the sale of alcoholic beverages at the same place and time."

"I believe that the introduction of gambling will have a terribly adverse affect on the retail liquor industry in Ohio. The law enforcement problems for this department, as well as local agencies, would be overwhelming," Reich said in urging the amendment be removed.

briefing that Carter's plan to withdraw over the next four to five years the 33,000 U.S. ground troops in South Korea was based on the ability of the South Koreans to defend themselves.

He said he knew of nothing related to the helicopter incident that would change the administration's plans.

The North Koreans opened fire on the helicopter, a CH47 Chinook, Thursday after it strayed north over the demilitarized zone separating North and South Korea. Three crew members were killed. A fourth was wounded and captured.

The Defense Department identified the four as Sgt. Robert C. Haynes, 29, Anniston, Ala.; Sgt. Ron Wells, 22, El Paso, Tex.; CWO Glenn M. Schwanke, 28, Spring Green, Wis. and CWO Joseph A. Miles, 26, Washington, Ind.

Pentagon officials said they did not know which of the men had been killed.

The last time a U.S. helicopter was shot down over North Korea, the North Koreans said it was "a provocation by U.S. imperialists." The first meeting on the incident did not take place until Aug. 29, 1969, 12 days after it occurred, and the three crew members were not released until Dec. 3, 1969, when the United States signed a document stating that it was responsible for "a criminal act."
